Desert Bootleg Stills.
Power From Mercury.
New Cosmic Eye.
Billy Sunday Fights On.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 27.

YOU FIND contrasts here, at the edge of the Pacific. Coming through the mountain pass an hour to the East, a wind, freezing cold, blows down from the snow-covered mountains.

A few minutes later at the bottom of the pass you open all the automobile windows, take off your overcoat, and see near Azuza, men picking ripe strawberries in a really hot climate.

ON THE NARROW desert trails a surprising number of new automobiles, their drivers in fine "store" clothes, replace the old third-hand cars held together by straps and pieces of rope, that you once saw on the same trails.

That is not, you are told, the result of prohibition closing the saloons, and "keeping dad from spending his money on drink."

Prohibition nevertheless is responsible. "In remote parts of the desert, wherever there is water, there is a whisky still." Some of those cars carry customers going out to buy. Others carry the bootleg manufacturers.

Prohibition develops a strange prosperity of its own.

He sees, in the morning paper, news from his Schenectady factory of the world's strangest plant for generating power.

Vapor from mercury is used in place of steam. Two hundred and fifty thousand pounds of mercury, in a gigantic boiler, will generate electric power at low cost. Waterfalls may find themselves out of fashion before they are fairly put to work.

ANCIENT SCENTISTS seeking vainly to solidify mercury, because they did not konw how to produce a sufficiently low temperature, little thought that the strange metal, raised to the boiling point, might be used to create artificial lightning.

MORE INTERESTING than bigger manufacturing plants, greater moving picture studios, or even generating power, with vapor from mercury, is the giant 200-inch telescope for Mount Wilson observatory.

The General Electric Company is casting the quartz reflectors for that telescope, well decribed by Gerard Swope as "an exciting adventure." It isn't likely that General Electric will ever get another such order, in Mr. Swope's lifetime, at least.

BUT THIS new cosmic eye will reveal new universes to the eye of man, carrying his photographic sight out into space so far that light going 186,000 miles a second, would require 100,000,000 years to cross the inter-stellar chasm.

THOSE FIGURES seem big even on the edge of the Pacific Ocean. If this universe really is finite and limited, as Einstein says, there is comfort in the knowledge that it is not cramped. The mind of man cannot conceive a universe, finite or infinite. Put this paper down now and try for yourself.

BILLY SUNDAY is here continuing his long fight against Satan, who seems to have many lives. Mr. Sunday has added a fight against former Gov. Alfred Smith to his fight against the devil and exclaims joyously:

"We have sent the saloon to hell, where it belongs. Al Smith could no more make this country wet again than he could hope to cross the Atlantic Ocean on a grindstone drawn by cockroaches."

APT COMPARISON is Billy Sunday's strong weapon.

Former Gov. Smith might reply that while New York has lost about 15,000 saloons, "sent to hell," or elsewhere, it has gained at least 60,000 speakeasies, and the worst brand of whisky known to man.

BILLY SUNDAY invites the "red" Communists here and elsewhere "to go back to Russia" or follow where the saloon has gone.

Investigators in Los Angeles discovered that "red" squadrons are drilling here "training for revolution" and the overthrow of our government.

Those red squadrons will not be popular with the million people that own their own houses, automobiles, radio sets, electric washers, etc., in this neighborhood, and do not wish to divide anything except the unlimited opportunity, open to everybody, to get more real estate, bigger automobiles, better radio sets.

OF ALL SCIENTIFIC discoveries made accidentally, one of the strangest comes from Joliet, Ill. Dr. Weaver ordered a transfusion of "parents" blood, in the case of a 15-year-old girl suffering from infantile paralysis.

Another doctor misunderstood him to say "parrot's blood," and accordingly made a transfusion of blood from the heart of a living parrot. Doctors say the child is getting well. A thousand doctors will exclaim "bosh."

BUT IF THE injection of malaria germs into the blood stream of a paretic can check or cure paresis, some germ in the parrot's blood, possibly even the dreaded psitacosis germ itself, might attack the germ of infantile paralysis.

Men know for certain only two things, first that they know nothing and second, that nothing is impossible.

Drug Store Held Up by 2 Gunmen

THUGS MISS THOUSANDS IN SAFE

Manager and Clerk Forced To Empty Registers of $200; Pennies Rejected

"Now you can call the police, but don't come out to the street."

With this parting shot, two young well-dressed men backed out of a Dow Drug Company store at Diamond and Smithfield streets after they had held up two men and looted three cash registers of $200 this morning.

The pair made no attempt to force the night manager to open a safe on a balcony, which contained several thousand dollars.

Charles F. Grimes, 48, of 223 South Aiken avenue, the night manager, and Edward Millstone, 20, of 6421 Bartlett street, a clerk, were the only persons in the store when the holdup men entered.

BOTH DREW GUNS

One robber stopped at the soda counter and the other walked to the prescription department in the rear to where Grimes was standing. Both drew guns and pointed them at the store employes.

Millstone was forced to open the register at the soda fountain. The robber said:

"Give me everything but the pennies."

Millstone obeyed, handing over about $40.

Grimes was forced to open the register behind the prescription counter and the one in the front of the store. About $160 was removed from the two registers.

The robber who guarded the manager said:

"Is that all the money there is around here?"

Grimes replied:

"That's all."

BUTLER SLUR PROTESTED BY ITALY

Ambassador Asks Redress For Branding Mussolini 'War Dog,' Hit-Run Driver

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—(AP.)—Ambassador de Martino of Italy in a formal statement characterized today as "untrue and slanderous" remarks attributed to Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler in a recent address in Philadelphia picturing Premier Benito Mussolini as a "hit-and-run" driver and "a mad dog for war."

The Navy Department has asked Butler to explain the speech, but has had no reply as yet. Maj. Gen. Butler commands a marine post at Quantico, Va.

Adequate redress has been demanded by the Italian government in a formal protest to the State Department against Butler's remarks.

QUOTES BUTLER

The ambassador's statement said:

"In an address delivered before the Contemporary Club of Philadelphia on January 19, Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler stated, as it appears from the Philadelphia papers, that Signor Mussolini had invited a friend of the general's (whose name, however, he did not mention) to accompany him in a tour around Italy in an armored automobile; that during this tour Signor Mussolini ran over a child without stopping when the child was hit, and that when the general's friend screamed when the accident occurred, Mussolini uttered these words:

"'What is one life in the affairs of a state?'"

"The Royal Italy Embassy can state categorically that Signor Mussolini has never invited any American to accom-

GOVERNOR TO BACK UP UTILITIES CHARGES

Forester Willing to Appear As Witness if Senate Forces Investigation

By E. W. PRENDERGAST,
Staff Correspondent.

HARRISBURG, Jan. 27.—The flare of the torchlight was carried into the Capitol today when Gov. Pinchot announced he would welcome an inquiry into his campaign fillips against the public utilities.

The governor said he was "heartily in favor" of an investigation of the Public Service Commission and the utilities.

WILL TESTIFY

He added that he would be glad to testify before a committee if he were asked. Concerning the resolutions Senators Earnest and Salus introduced last night, asking a joint or senatorial investigation of the Pinchot policies against the utilities, he said:

"If there is anything to be known about the Public Service Commission, I think it should be known.

"Of course, I will appear if asked. I don't know what the House will do with the resolutions."

At the same time, the Judiciary General Committee of the Senate was considering the resolutions. After their discussion, lasting more than an hour, spokesmen announced that they would postpone all action until next Tuesday. This means that they will have a week or more to consider whether they might embarrass the Governor in his public utility stand by the investigation or whether it might prove a boomerang to the Philadelphia group

1 DEAD, 31 HURT IN GANDHI CRUSH

BOMBAY, India, Jan. 27.—(AP.)—During the frantic efforts of great crowds to catch a glimpse of Mahatma Gandhi here today a woman was crushed to death and 31 persons were seriously injured. The confusion was so great that Gandhi could not address the multitude.

Gandhi served notice on Great Britain today that regardless of progress in the establishment of self-government in India the activities of the Congress party, including its campaign of civil disobedience, will continue.

The Nationalist boycott of foreign cloth, the party's refusal to pay taxes and its picketing of liquor, drug and cloth shops will go on.

The Mahatma, idol of millions, issued this first concrete statement of the policy of his party as he sat Hindu fashion on a stone

FLAMES SWEEP WAREHOUSE

Firemen today were still pouring water into the ruins of the warehouse of the R. J. Omslaer Wrecking Company, 1300 to 1342 River avenue, North Side, after a 12-hour battle. The fire began last night and raged through the four-story brick structure. Four alarms were sounded.

Fire Chief Richard L. Smith, who directed the battle, said the cause was undetermined. The damage will be more than $50,000, he declared. Police and firemen stated a rumor that a man had been burned in the fire was unfounded.

In North Braddock today, firemen fought a fire which, following an explosion, destroyed the dwelling of James Scuglia, 833 Middle street, at a loss of $5,000. The family was absent.

The North Side fire was spec-

VETS' DEATHBED PLEA FOUGHT

A dying war veteran's request that his estranged wife be denied the custody of his two small children will be before the court tomorrow.

Katherine Rodgers, of Warren, O., a sister of Joseph T. Flannagan, a World War veteran and street car motorman, of Castle Shannon, who died in the United States Veterans Hospital Saturday, has filed habeas corpus proceedings to prevent Mrs. Ruth Flannagan from obtaining the custody of the children.

The children, Norma, 10, and Ruth Anna, 5, are now in the custody of Mrs. Theresa McManus, of Castle Shannon, where Flannagan had roomed since he became estranged from his wife 11 months ago.

According to Mrs. Rodgers, Flannagan requested that his children be awarded to either her or Mrs. McManus. The hearing will be held in Common Pleas Court tomorrow.

Flannagan was given a military funeral today from St. Ann's Roman Catholic Church. His wife did not attend the funeral.

Melba's Condition Declared Improved

SYDNEY, New South Wales, Jan. 27.—(AP.)—Dame Nellie Melba, famous opera singer who was taken to a hospital here last Thursday seriously ill, was stated today to be improving. A rest and strict diet have been prescribed for her.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—(AP.)—Prohibition Director Woodcock, who was taken ill last week while on an inspection trip, returned today to his desk here.

Chinese Star Offers Home to Fairbanks

PEIPING, Jan. 27.—(INS.)—Out of gratitude for the hospitality extended him while in the United States, Mei-Lan Fang, China's premier actor, today placed his home at the disposal of Douglas Fairbanks, due here February 4 en route to Siam on a hunting expedition.

Mei-Lan Fang's home is a beautiful residence in true Chinese style, with spacious gardens and filled with rare objects of art.

Harold Lloyd's Son In Battle for Life

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 27.—(INS.)—The tiny baby son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Lloyd was being carefully watched and attended today in an effort to save his life. The baby arrived two months before he was expected and was rushed to a glass incubator soon after his birth.

Attending physicians would not give an opinion on the baby's chance of life.

Nobile Rescuer Killed in Crash

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 27.—(INS.)—Flight Commander Lundborg, who led the expedition into the Arctic wastes which resulted in the rescue of Commander Umberto Nobile and several members of the crew of the wrecked polar dirigible Italia, was fatally injured in an airplane crash at the Malmslatt military aerodrome today. Lundborg's plane crashed from a height of 130 feet.

GRANT WITHERS UNDER KNIFE

Mr. Withers

Withers was hurried to Passavant Hospital after he collapsed backstage at a downtown theater, where he had been making personal appearances. An examination disclosed a case of acute appendicitis.

The operation was not started until the talking picture star called his wife, Loretta Young, at Hollywood. She promised she would hurry to Chicago.

Dr. Kegel said the operation was a success, and that Withers is showing signs of returning strength.

CAPITAL DRY BILL KILLED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—(INS.)—Ending a five-day battle over prohibition enforcement in the District of Columbia, the Senate this afternoon abandoned the Howell bill, designed to make the national capital a "model city" for prohibition enforcement, in order to begin consideration of the War Department appropriation bill.

The Senate's action was interpreted as "killing" the Howell bill, since even its advocates conceded there was little likelihood of its being enacted into law before March 4.

The Senate action was on motion of Senator Reed, (Rep.), Pennsylvania, who is in charge of the army bill, and came after Senator Robinson, the Democratic leader, joined in a plea to give priority to relief and appropriation bills.

Senator Norris, (Rep.), Nebraska, opposed Reed's motion, declaring it meant the killing of the Howell measure.

Senator Robinson criticized the Republican steering committee for bringing forth the Howell bill with many appropriation bills still to be passed before March 4.

Camera Refutes Peaches' Charges Against 'Daddy'

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—(AP.)—If Mrs. Frances (Peaches) Browning's sleuths saw what they say they saw in "Daddy's" Browning's Rolls Royce, they have better eyes than the camera.

So his attorney contended yesterday in opposing Mrs. Browning's plea for $20,000 counsel fees by which she hopes to get divorce on the grounds of improper conduct.

Fourteen photographs of the limousine, taken from every possible angle, were submitted to Supreme Court Justice Hatting in an effort to show that it is impossible to see into the tonneau. More than that, it was shown, a plate glass windshield between the front and rear seats prevents even the chauffeur from taking a peek through his mirror.

Browning's attorney also submitted affidavits testifying that Peaches is in a sound financial condition. She occupies a $250-a-month apartment in a fashionable section, it was averred, and she recently had it re-decorated at a cost of $6,000.

Some of her worldly goods were listed as follows: 30 modish gowns, up to $350 each; 15 pairs of shoes, $15 to $20 a pair; fur coats and clothes, $20,000; jewelry, $10,000 and more.

Decision was reserved and both sides were directed to file briefs today.

Man Jailed Three Months By 'Oversight,' Stays In

"An innocent oversight" was the opinion of Judge James H. Gray in Common Pleas Court today as he refused to grant the release of Merdil Queen, who has been confined in the county jail since October without trial.

An assistant district attorney explained to the court that the information, charging Queen with larceny of an automobile, had been "lost" in the office of the clerk of courts, and had not been returned to the district attorney's office.

Citing the law freeing prisoners confined in jail during two court terms without having been indicted, W. F. Beatty, counsel for Queen, filed habeas corpus proceedings.

Judge Gray ruled Queen's confinement was an innocent oversight, and, after refusing to release Queen, ordered that his case be brought before the grand jury immediately.

Queen was arrested with Joseph A. Hoffman. Hoffman pleaded guilty and was sentenced from 5 to 10 years' imprisonment. The District Attorney contended Queen had also pleaded guilty.

DISEASE PERILS HUNGRY, PLEA TO CONGRESS

$25,000,000 Red Cross Fund Necessary, Health Men Testify at Hearing

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27. Disease threatens to stalk through the drought stricken states of the South, Dr. Hugh S. Cumming, surgeon general of the United States Public Health Service, told the House Appropriations Committee today.

Outside aid is necessary to curb the spread of pellagra, scurvy, rickets, typhoid fever and other diseases caused by malnutrition, he said.

He was called before the committee to testify on the Senate's $25,000,000 Red Cross relief fund, and a $5,000,000 amendment providing for rural sanitation work in the drought area. He said:

"There should be some relief from some source—I don't know how much will be needed."

SAYS WEST VA. NEEDS AID

A letter from Dr. W. T. Henshaw, commissioner of public health of West Virginia, said:

"If the health of the people of West Virginia is to be protected federal aid will be necessary."

Representative Wood (Rep.) of Indiana, committee chairman advanced the idea that the federal government loan funds to the states.

Charging the Hoover administration with being "deaf to the wail of the hungry and blind to the sight of human misery," Senator Black (Dem.), of Alabama, this afternoon demanded that the President withdraw his opposition to the $25,000,000 Red Cross relief fund so it can be enacted into law.

Black said the Red Cross reported that each day 55,000 more persons were in need of relief. He estimated a total of 5,000,000 persons were unemployed, with a total of 20,000,000 dependents likely to need aid.

MULES VS. HUMANS

He charged the administration was willing to tax the public to feed a cold and hungry mule, but refused to feed cold and hungry humans. He was referring to government seed and livestock loans. Black said:

"It is another example of that great humanitarianism that taxes Americans to nourish and support Belgians, Russians and other Europeans, but cracks the party whip against any Republican who dares to think that feeding our own people might be patriotic and justifiable."

Senator Sees Time Coming When Workers Will Be Insured Against Idleness

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Corporations learned long ago how to accumulate reserve funds during profitable years in order to pay dividends during slack periods, and there is no reason why such steps should not be taken ot insure the wages of workers who must be temporarily laid off, Senator Wagner (Dem.), of New York, told the conference on permanent preventives for unemployment held here by three national church organizations.

The New York Democrat, who is sponsoring legislation to aid those out of work, said:

"The bread line is not America's solution to the unemployment problem.

SEES INSURANCE PLAN

"There is no doubt in my mind that sooner than most of us anticipate we shall insure our workers against unemployment. We shall learn to treat it as a business risk. We shall realize that the idleness of the men and women who are ready and willing to work is part of the general cost of running our high speed civilization."

His address was broadcast over a national radio hookup as were the remarks of Edward E. Hunt, secretary of the Federal Emergency Employment committee; Daniel J. Meserole, president of the National Unemployment League and Otto T. Mallory, of the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce.

LONG-RANGE PLANNING

Hunt advocated long-range planning of public works construction and said unemployment prevention is more promising than amelioration. Meserole suggested shorter hours for labor, increased wages and an expansion of federal, state and municipal public works.

tacular and was watched by many from across the river in Duquesne way.

The entire structure, filled with old building material, was ablaze when firemen responded to the first alarm which was sounded by Charles Bankhead, watchman at the plant. Robert J. Omslaer, president and treasurer of the wrecking company and Bankhead discovered the blaze on the second floor. When he left to call in sounding the first alarm, the flames were shooting through the roof and every window of the building which fronted 200 feet on River avenue.

FIRE TRUCK IN CRASH

Four alarms rung in quick succession brought a dozen companies to the scene. Streams of water were played through the windows of three sides of the burning building.

Machinery in the combing department of the P. McGraw Wool Company, which adjoined the building of the wrecking firm was said to have been damaged by water. Sparks from the blaze menaced adjacent property and freight cars.

Omslaer said Bankhead, whose living quarters adjoin the office of the company in another building, was the only one on the premises at the time.

The truck of No. 2 Engine Company speeding to the fire over the Sixteenth Street Bridge collided with an automobile driven by James O'Keefe, 35, of 712 Woodbourne avenue, Brookline, police said. O'Keefe, injured seriously, was taken to West Penn Hospital. The firemen, escaping injury, continued to the fire in another truck.

A crowd estimated at several thousands crowded the neighborhood.

North Braddock police and firemen this morning began search of the ruins of the Middle street dwelling. It is believed that a man may have been burned to death. The house was owned by Joseph L. Gluss, 2432 Woodstock avenue, Swissvale, and rented by an Italian family whose identity police have been unable to establish.

Flames spread to the dwelling of E. J. Johnston, of 821 Middle street, but were extinguished by firemen. The loss was estimated at $5,000 by Fire Chief Louis Burdell.

Mrs. Margaret Mauck, of 827 Middle street, who sounded the fire alarm, told police she saw a light in a basement window a half hour before the explosion. The woman tenant and her two children departed from home a week ago to visit relatives, but the man was seen entering the house at various times, according to Mrs. Mauck.

INDICT SEVEN IN BUCKLEY DEATH

DETROIT, Jan. 27.—(AP.)—A sealed indictment charging six men and a woman with the slaying of Jerry Buckley, radio political commentator, was returned today by the Wayne County grand jury which has been investigating the killing and other crimes for five months.

Those named in the indictment were Ted Pizzino, Joseph Bommarito and Antonio Iacocchi, who are in jail here. Pete Licavoli, who has been sought unsuccessfully since Buckley was shot to death July 23, and two men and a woman whose names were not disclosed. They are described in the indictment as John Doe, Richard Roe and Mary Roe.

FIND EDWARDS' SUICIDE NOTE

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Jan. 27.—(AP.)—In a letter Edward I. Edwards, former United States senator and governor of New Jersey, made public before he shot himself Sunday night, the explanation of his suicide was found today.

The note was discovered on a dresser in the room in which he fired the fatal shot. It was addressed to his daughter, Elizabeth, and his son, Edward, Jr., and directed their attention to insurance papers and business affairs. It closed: "Goodby. Dad."

Funeral services will be held tomorrow night in St. Paul's Episcopal Church, of which he was a vestryman. A delegation of legislators from Trenton will attend. He will be buried in New York Bay Cemetery.

Gov. Morgan F. Larson has ordered that the State House shall be draped in mourning and that flags on state buildings shall fly at half mast for 30 days.

Venus and Mars Populated, Belief

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 27.—(AP.)—Dr. Leon Campbell, Bruce of astronomy at Harvard University, supported the theory that the planets Mars and Venus have some forms of life, he said.

"We have no right to assume that we are the only people in the universe. There are billions of suns just like ours and much larger than ours. Such suns may each have their different planets. We do not know, however. We can never make them out here. At their immense distances from us, they huddle up into their respective suns.

BLAST WRECKS HOMES, CHURCH

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Jan. 27.—(INS.)—One house was blown to bits and five other residences, the town hall and the Holy Rosary Church were partially wrecked by an explosion at Leetonia, near here, today. Damage was estimated at $25,000.

No one was injured according to Leetonia police.

Investigation of the explosion, the sixth to occur in the city within the past year, was launched immediately by county and state officials.

The blast was believed to have been caused by a dynamite bomb or gasoline. Several men were seen running away from the scene shortly before the blast took place, authorities said.

4 MEN SOUGHT IN FARO FRAUD

CHICAGO, Jan. 27.—(INS.)—Three men sought here today as the perpetrators of the Springfield, (Ill.), faro game swindle which separated Mrs. Myrtle Tanner Blackledge, former internal revenue collector, and Edward R. Litzinger, from $50,000 in cash.

Shortly after Herbert Graham, New York postoffice inspector, arrived on the scene yesterday to help Chief of Detectives John Norton, word was broadcast that Frank Hall, alias Davis, Robert Newburn and Charles Fernandez, were wanted in connection with the faro game.

In addition to this trio, Roy Browder, alias Roy Burgess, was sought as the "steer man" who, according to Mrs. Blackledge, persuaded her to go to the Springfield Hotel, where she was duped into obtaining $30,000 in cash to show her good faith before collecting $207,000 which she was led to believe she had won.

Mrs. Blackledge, who resigned her federal position Saturday, was removed from the hospital to a private home yesterday, although physicians said she had spent the worst days since the swindle.

West Point Land Bill Passes Senate

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—A bill authorizing the purchase of 17,000 acres of land in Orange County, New York, as an addition to the military academy at West Point was passed by the Senate last night. The bill authorizes the appropriation of $1,500,000 to purchase the land.

Convict Doomed For Prison Murder

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—(INS.)—Harry Lipschitz, 27, Sing Sing lifer, today was under sentence to die in the electric chair the week of March 16 for the fatal stabbing of Raymond Klune, a fellow prisoner. After a motion for a new trial was denied, attorneys said they would appeal.

LAVAL FORMS NEW CABINET

PARIS, Jan. 27.—(INS.)—Adopting tactics of the municipal union of the late Andre Tardieu government which preceded the Theodore Steeg coalition that crashed Thursday, Senator Pierre Laval successfully ended 48 hours of negotiations today by forming a cabinet.

He presented his ministry to President Gaston Doumergue at noon, and called the first cabinet meeting for 5 p. m. today.

The new government includes 10 ministers who held portfolios under the Tardieu regime, with the former premier himself in the humble post of minister of agriculture. Aristide Briand was again given his cherished office of foreign minister, while Andre Maginot was appointed to head the war ministry, a post he held under Tardieu.

FIRING ON RUM SHIP SIFTED

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—(INS.)—A special inquiry board, appointed by Capt. Randolph Ridgely, Jr., in charge of the Coast Guard here, today began its investigation of the firing on the Canadian rum-runner, the Josephine K. The blasting of the pilot house of the schooner off Ambrose Light at the entrance to New York harbor on Saturday caused the death of the ship's captain, William P. Cluett.

Twenty-one men, officers and members of the crews of the schooner and the tug Dauntless 6 and the barge City of Brooklyn, were held in bail ranging from $500 to $7,500 last night by Garret W. Cotter, United States commissioner.

While the Josephine K investigation was opened, the British consul here was asked to investigate the fate of a man missing when a check was made of the crew list of the Canadian motorboat Temiscounja, captured by a Coast Guard cutter yesterday after a chase along Long Island waters.

Nine Co-eds Live On 29 Cents Daily

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—(INS.)—Nine girl students of the economic class at Washington Missionary College are trying to prove a person can live and feel good—on 29 cents a day.

The experiment was started last week and will continue for three more.

This is the menu followed by the students:

Breakfast—Prunes, oatmeal with milk, breaded tomatoes, bread and substitute butter and milk.

Dinner—Baked potatoes with carrot and nut roast, spinach, gravy made from vegetable stock, cabbage slaw, bread and butter.

Supper—Popped corn, one raw apple and milk. Desserts are permitted three times a week.

$6,000 AIRPORT JOB CREATED

The County Commissioners today established the position of superintendent of the county airport at a salary of $6,000, but did not fill the position, probably because Commissioner C. C. McGovern suggested that more time should be given to a study of candidates. McGovern also voted against creating the position.

Commissioner E. V. Babcock was for selecting a superintendent immediately and suggested C. W. Forcier, formerly of the Pittsburgh Aviation Industries.

Babcock reported that progress on the construction of the airport in Moffatt Township was rapid.

"During the discussion Chairman Joseph G. Armstrong said he does not indulge in politics in the commissioners' office.

Minority Commissioner McGovern had remarked:

"If this is another political appointment I want to go on record against it."

Armstrong retorted:

"I never play politics in the commissioners' office. If I want to play politics, I play outside."

HAWKS STARTS FLIGHT WEST

CLEVELAND, Jan. 27.—(INS.)—Capt. Frank M. Hawks and his wife, flying from New York to Fort Worth, landed at Cleveland airport here today and within 10 minutes took off for Texas. The famous speed aviator stopped here only long enough to refuel.

From Fort Worth, Hawks will go to Abilene where he will be joined by Will Rogers. They will resume their tour of the Southwest in the interest of the Red Cross Relief drive for storm sufferers.

Communist Youths Back Soviet Union

MOSCOW, Jan. 27.—(AP.)—The Congress of Communist Youth, whose members number 3,000,000, ended a series of meetings here today with the adoption of resolutions supporting the Soviet Union and calling for extinction of the Kulaks by 100 per cent collectivization of farms.

DAISY CENSURES CLARA BOW

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 27.—(INS.)—Attorney William Bierne this day hammered himself into retirement in the recent grandchild trial of Daisy De Voe, former secretary of Clara Bow, who was found guilty on a charge of having appropriated $825 of the screen star's funds.

Mrs. De Voe will appear for sentence next Monday when Attorney Bierne plans to present arguments for a new trial for his client. Meantime Miss De Voe remains in county jail.

An appeal from Miss Bow to District Attorney Buron Fitts asking that leniency be shown the blonde secretary failed to impress Miss De Voe in her cell. She said:

"Clara's ways are not my ways. I would rather not comment on anything Miss Bow does. It's nice enough for her to write the letter, but it must be remembered that if Clara had thought a little more before she started all this it would not have happened."

EX-KAISER, 72, CELEBRATES

By WALTER DIETZEL.

International News Service.

BERLIN, Jan. 27.—Hale and hearty on his seventy-second birthday anniversary and still as closely astride of important world events as in the days when he was Emperor of Germany, Wilhelm Hohenzollern today gathered his immediate family and a few close friends about him at Doorn, Holland, and quietly observed the natal milestone.

Germany, with minor exceptions, overlooked the calendar mark that once signified a day of national celebration.

Contrary to the pomp and military splendor that glorified the preceding anniversary, the ex-Kaiser this year preferred to past the occasion in the simple manner of the Dutch countryside.

Adams' Observation Of Fleet Cancelled

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—(AP.)—Urgency of naval legislation pending in Congress has caused Secretary Adams to cancel observation of the war problem during the February fleet concentration in Panama waters.

Under present plans he will sail on the U. S. S. Chester from Norfolk, Va., about March 4 for the remaining maneuvers.

Noted New Yorkers Eager To Aid Milk Fund Opera

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—(Universal.)—The news that Von Suppe's scintillant medieval opera, "Boccaccio," will be sung February 4 at the Metropolitan Opera House at a special gala matinee for the benefit of the Free Milk Fund for babies has already aroused a wide response among New Yorkers who love music and want to help needy, undernourished children.

One of the first to answer the fund's appeal was Mayor James J. Walker, who today sent a check for $150 and the following letter to Mrs. William Randolph Hearst, president of the fund:

"Mrs. William Randolph Hearst
137 Riverside Drive,
New York City.

"My Dear Mrs. Hearst:

"As one who appreciates the splendid work your organization is doing for the people of the city of New York, it gives me great pleasure to hand you herewith my check for one hundred fifty dollars.

"Very Truly Yours,
"JAMES J. WALKER,
"Mayor."

Many distinguished names appear on the list of those who have subscribed for boxes. They include Vincent Astor, Mrs. Nicholas F. Brady, Pierre Cartier, Walter Chrysler, Mrs. E. L. Cornelius Vanderbilt.

Many organizations have subscribed for boxes.

Mrs. Hearst and Mrs. Nelson Henry, vice president of the Fund, set as the Fund's goal a daily pint of milk for every needy child in New York.

Urged Mate to Wed Rival, Woman Says in Suit

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 27.—(AP.)—Love so great that she gave her husband in marriage to Phoebe Armstrong, a woman 14 years younger than herself, is professed by Mrs. Stella Marlenee in contesting the will of her divorced husband, Dr. Charles L. Marlenee.

Yesterday in Superior Court she testified:

"I even prepared Phoebe's wedding garments for her. She always exerted a sort of hypnotic influence over me."

Dr. Marlenee, an optician, died last September of injuries received in a fall from a ladder. His estate was valued at $500,000 by Mrs. Stella Marlenee and $125,000 by the widow.

Mrs. Phoebe Marlenee, who was willed the bulk of the estate, testified:

"Stella asked me to marry Dr. Marlenee, saying I could make him happy. But I told them I would not consider it until I was convinced they could not get along together. Later Stella wrote me she would have gotten a divorce herself if the doctor hadn't."

His divorce was obtained in Las Vegas, Nev., in September, 1927.

STATE SENATE INDORSES DAVIS

Brandt Quotes Resolution as Correct Appraisal of Fees

Pinchot Foes Say Vote Was Political

HARRISBURG, Jan. 27.—The State Senate unanimously adopted a resolution offered by Senator Turner to express confidence of the Senate in James J. Davis and his seat in the United States Senate, after a brief debate.

After a brief session the Senate adjourned until Monday night at 8.

A bill to permit the annexation of Ross township, Allegheny county, to Pittsburgh was introduced in the Senate by Senator Herman Brandt. The measure provides that the entire township be annexed.

Suggestion that only that part of Ross township which is contiguous to Pittsburgh be annexed was made by Senator Brandt, who said that the taxable property in the township be divided by a commission, thus preventing existing debts from being incurred.

BURIAL SITES

Senator Brandt introduced a bill for the creation of cemeteries. Property in Ross Township would be used for the establishment of a cemetery and provide for the establishment in the township, if feasible, for other cemeteries.

Senator Clark has submitted a bill appropriating $6,000,000 for the Pennsylvania Assembly Building.

Senators will vote on the Pinchot-Davis resolution when the Senate reconvenes at 8 o'clock tonight.

PINCHOT FOES BUSY

Measures which Governor Pinchot opposed in the last year were introduced last night by Senator Brandt, S. B. Montgomery, Republican, and Chauncey W. Parker, Democrat, Clearfield, both of whom supported Senator A. E. Davis, Pinchot candidate for president pro tempore of the Senate.

Boyd and Parker bills would prevent duplicate drivers' licenses, and the issuance of licenses for motor vehicles. These proposals were opposed by Governor Pinchot, campaigning for the administration measures that have not yet appeared in the Assembly. Boyd also sponsored a resolution declaring it "the sense of the General Assembly that the gasoline tax, now 3 cents, shall not be increased above that amount." That is another Pinchot campaign pledge, but the governor's bill on the subject has not been introduced. The Boyd resolution was referred to the Finance Committee.

STATE ROADS PROPOSED

Other bills backed by the Pinchot road program were introduced by Senator William H. Clark, West Chester, who supported the Governor in the Senate organization. The Clark measures provide that all roads not now state highways which have been improved with state financial assistance shall be added to the system, with the state responsible for full maintenance costs. These include township roads paved with concrete, brick or asphalt, and county roads to which the state paid half the cost of improvement.

The Pinchot plank for acceptance of 20,000 miles of state roads includes 6,000 miles already improved. These 6,000 miles would be cared for in Clark's bills. They are companion pieces to one of Clark's passed last session, which added to the state system all side roads improved with concrete at that time.

OLD AGE PENSIONS

Another Pinchot plank, old-age pensions, came from senators on both sides of the Senate's political fence. Senator Joseph C. Trainer of the First Philadelphia District, and Senator Hayes, who supported the Governor, introduced constitutional amendments to enable the proposed state payments to the indigent aged. Harris also presented a bill backed by all state welfare organizations, appropriating $4,115,938 for mothers' assistance. That sum, it is estimated, is sufficient to meet all the needs of eligible mothers.

Harris also presented a codification of election laws, making no changes, compiled by the Legislative Reference Bureau in anticipation of a report of proposed changes by the Election Laws Commission, names of which were announced today by Gov. Pinchot.

Union League Asks Hoover to New York

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27 (INS).—President Hoover was invited to go to New York on February 22 and participate in ceremonies incident to the opening of the Union League Club's new clubhouse. Representative Snell, Rep., N. Y., and Representative Fred E. Martin, Democrat, Pennsylvania, head the committee of invitation, leaving the date to be set by Mr. Hoover himself. The President was said to be considering the advisement.

Trial of Bishop's Son Again Delayed

Measure Asking $250,000 For Board Also Offered; Old Age Pensions Proposed

HARRISBURG, Jan. 27.—Two bills providing for the establishment of a city manager form of government in Pittsburgh were introduced in the House and Senate respectively by Representative Reed and Senator Mackey last night at 8 o'clock.

The bills, which were identical, were introduced after the Senate had adjourned until Monday night at 8 o'clock.

Rep. Reed's bill was introduced in the House at 8:02 p. m., and Senator Mackey's bill was introduced in the Senate at 8:03 p. m.

REFERRED TO COMMITTEES

In carrying out the investigation, Senator Mackey's bill, the joint resolution asked an appropriation of $50,000. Both resolutions were referred to the general judiciary committee.

The provisions in the Kalvesh bill for the personnel of the committee are to include 15 members each of the general committees of the Senate and House. ATTACK IN HOUSE

The House last night heard a bitter attack on the Governor by Representative Wilkin, Philadelphia. Wilkin said he held no brief for the public utilities, but declared the great corporations should not be subjected to abuse by the Governor until the facts are presented.

Referring to the Governor's attack on the Philadelphia organization, Wilkin shouted:

"We want less abuse from his excellency, the Governor."

The Wilkin speech followed passage by the House of the Turner concurrent resolution memorializing Congress that the General Assembly is convinced U. S. Senator James J. Davis was [illegible] and honestly elected and [illegible] that his right to his seat should not be disputed. The resolution now goes to the Senate.

NEW BILL ASKS DRY LAW VOTE

BLUE LAW END IN STATE ASKED

HARRISBURG, Jan. 27.—A bill to legalize Sunday amusement, provided there be no charge for admission except for charitable or educational purposes, was submitted to the Legislature today by Representative James Wettach, of Allegheny County.

The bill, second to go into the House hopper for modification or repeal of the blue laws, follows one submitted last week by Representative M. A. Musmanno, of Stowe Township.

Included in the Wettach measure was also the provision to sell, hire, furnish or supply necessities or conveniences. In this category was mentioned the sale or delivery of milk, ice, ice cream, soda water, confectionery, tobacco, newspapers and magazines, auto fuel and automobile accessories for immediate consumption. All acts inconsistent with Wettach's would automatically be repealed by its enactment.

A bill relating to contracts involving transfer of personal property was presented today by Representative Arthur Storer, of Allegheny County. The bill specifies that any contract made by which the second party fails to receive a copy of the agreement, or that any transfer of personal property without the immediate transfer of title be declared against public policy.

HARRISBURG, Jan. 27.—(AP)—A resolution providing for a referendum on prohibition in Pennsylvania was introduced in the State Senate last night by Senator George Woodward, Philadelphia.

The referendum would take the form of three questions, as follows:

"Do you favor repeal of the Pennsylvania law of 1923, commonly known as the Snyder law, which prohibits the manufacture, traffic in and possession of intoxicating liquors for beverage purposes?

"Do you favor repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States which prohibits the manufacture, sale and transportation, importation and exportation of intoxicating liquors for beverage purposes?

"If the Eighteenth Amendment is retained as a part of the constitution of the United States, do you favor a modification of the Federal enforcement law so as to permit the manufacture and sale of light wines and beer for beverage purposes?"

BONUS AGAIN UP TO ASSEMBLY

HARRISBURG, Jan. 27.—Whether voters shall be asked to decide upon bonding the state for $50,000,000 for a bonus for Pennsylvania war veterans is placed squarely before the 1931 legislature in a proposed constitutional amendment offered last night by Representative Arthur Storer, Allegheny County. Twice before, once by courts once by the legislature, the pension proposal was kept off ballots because it was in conflict with bond issues for highway improvements.

The bonus amendment was passed by the 1929 session, and if the duplicate which Storer presented last night is approved at this session, the question will go before voters in November, 1933. If defeated at this session, it cannot be considered before 1938 at the earliest. The present amendment does not conflict with the road loans.

The Storer resolution proposes $50,000,000 in bonds to pension veterans of the World and Spanish-American wars, and expeditions to China, the Philippines and Guam.

Exemption from tax of gasoline used by cities, counties, other governmental units, and volunteer fire companies is provided in a bill introduced by Senator John J. McClure, of Delaware County. The 1929 gasoline tax law provided no exemptions.

Pinchot Designates State Holidays

HARRISBURG, Jan. 27.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot designated 12 holidays on which the Capitol will be closed without further notice from his office.

These holidays comprise New Years Day, Lincoln's Birthday, Washington's Birthday, Good Friday, Memorial Day, Independence Day, Labor Day, Columbus Day, Election Day, Armistice Day, Thanksgiving Day and Christmas. In the event any of these holidays fall on Sunday the Capitol will be closed the following Monday.

COUNCIL ASKED TO O.K. POLICE RADIO CARS

Body Expected to Approve Ordinance for Public Safety Motor Equipment

Action towards the purchase of new automobiles for the Bureau of Police and the City Detective Bureau, which was delayed last week when a number of councilmen attended Gov. Pinchot's inauguration, moved towards completion today.

Seventy automobiles for the Bureau of Police, to cost $30,000, are requested.

Thirty automobiles, all to be equipped with radio, are asked by the Department of Public Safety. Besides these and the motorcycles, six patrol wagons are requested. The automobiles will cost about $20,000, and the patrol wagons, $18,000. Two other cars, each to cost $3,200, are sought.

Action in Council gives its approval Stroup will advertise for bids.

Permission to advertise for a large amount of equipment for the Bureau of Highways and Sewers was also sought of Council. The equipment includes:

Four motor sweepers, costing $10,000; one senator, at $12,000; two loaders, costing $1,500; one roller, $3,800; another roller costing $4,500; three dump trucks aggregating $17,100, and a coupe costing $600.

The Home Is Destined to Go Forward

For a number of years, the American people, as a nation, have been neglecting their homes, in favor of automobiles, traveling, and other diversions, to the point that the furniture business has steadily declined in volume for several years, and furniture prices are the lowest in a generation.

A state of affairs like this may go on for a time, but it cannot continue indefinitely. The pendulum invariably swings the other way, and all indications point to this year's February Furniture Sale as the turning point in the development of a new era of home interest and refurnishing.

Two reasons strongly substantiate this prediction. One is that the furniture in most homes has reached a stage where replacements have become a matter of necessity; and the other is that prices have reached a point where quality furniture presents itself in the light of an exceedingly attractive and sound investment.

Inventory your home today. See what new furniture you can use to advantage. Then see the possibilities of the February Furniture Sale as applied to your home requirements. The February Furniture Sale discounts make the already record low prices still lower.

Advance inspection and selection can now be made of the February offerings, subject to delivery on or after February 2.

The Loudspeaker

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—Before the summer season of trans-Atlantic flights begins Maurice Chevalier will be one of what the professors call the big shots of radio. As this department stated several weeks ago the broadcasters' wallets will be considerably thinner when M. Chevalier calls it a studio day and departs for that dear Paris.

It would not surprise us if the French comedian adds radio to his triumphs quite as easily as he has added the music halls and the talkies. A canny boy, Chevalier, who seems to have the best business instinct that has come into the amusement world since Harry Lauder.

Here is the case of an entertainer who can neither sing nor dance, but who, by the sheer charm of personality, has become a star of the first magnitude. That charm, expressed by an ingratiating chuckle, a low, clear, if slightly nasal, voice, a disarming frankness and sincerity and a gay and rollicking masculineness is as apparent on the microphones as on the screen and stage.

He possesses an uncanny knack of putting over a song, even an essentially third rate song like "My Ideal." When he gets hold of a good tune, such as "Louise" or "The Love Parade" or "You Brought a New Kind of Love" he must be an answer to the song publishers' prayers. On the air he sings them in English with an engaging accent that makes them seem even zippier melodies than they really are.

I watched Chevalier in action. He brings into play none of his expansive gestures, none of his familiar facial expressions. With his Irish cast of countenance he stands at the microphone with arms clasped behind him, smiling, at ease.

He uses neither manuscript nor notes. Nor has he committed any of his chatter to memory. He is one of a woefully small group of artists who can actually face a microphone and speak extemporaneously.

He told us he likes American slang particularly the expressions, "I get a kick out of it," "right now," "you bet." He is able to put more feeling into the words, "right now" than we ever heard before. In his recent broadcast he used the expression in much the way Chic Sale uses "And I'll tell you why" or Jolson says, "You ain't heard nothin' yet." He would announce a song and then say, "I'm going to sing it for you. I'm going to sing it for you—RIGHT NOW."

Our operative, T-19, tells us that Chevalier was undecided whether to limit his broadcasts to five or six a year or whether to accept a contract calling for a series of weekly appearances. He believes, it is said, in the philosophy of always leaving an audience wanting more; that his welcome at the armchairs would be greater if he confined his radio journeys to five or six a season.

He must have been persuaded that weekly appearances for half a year would not injure his personality for he has accepted an engagement—one of the most lucrative ever signed—to make such appearances.

And, lastly, here is a clout over the head from "Cricket," also of New York:

"Unless you're as old as Methuselah, why not lay off that 'Turkey in the Straw' stuff? With all the gorgeous old trusted and tried concertos, operas and symphonies, why, indeed should anyone as intelligent as Damrosch unearth that old rot with his wonderful orchestra?"

WE NOW PRESENT

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

Scene: The lavishly purple studios of NBC in Chicago.

Enter: Paul Whiteman, King of Jazz, wearing his royal togs and bowing to rattle middleaged wild fanfare of low trumpets while his regal highness balances 207 pounds of avoirdupois before the microphone.

Scene ends.

Here on the air tonight, KDKA tonight at 8 o'clock in an excellent program featuring instrumental groupings of string trio, saxophone sextet, the Whiteman jesters and Mildred Bailey contralto blue singer. It would be treason in his own realm for Paul to open with anything else but "I Got Rhythm."

"Gentlemen Be Seated" can mean only one thing. A sand dance and a cakewalk are some of the novelties provided in Sigmund Spaeth's miniature minstrel show on WCAE at 9:30.

* * *

Sig is to show us also how a simple melody has served as a basic for a hymn, a ballad, a foxtrot and a waltz.

* * *

We still rave about tonight, and why not, with Frank Crumit doing "The Three Trees" on WCAE at 8; Lorna Fantin telling the celestial attributes of Walter Winchell, and Harry Richman on WJAS at 8:15; Bebe Falvo's return to WJAS at 7:15, a promising new feature of "Clara, Lu and Em" on KDKA at 10:30.

'LIEBESTOD' on WJAS

More and better a Howard Barlow interpretation of the most poignant love scene in the world of music, Isolde's Love Death from "Tristan and Isolde," WJAS at 9:30. "Liebestod" depicts in epic musical proportions the storm of tragic passion and grief that sweeps over Isolde after the passing of Tristan and carries her through from depths of anguish to an exalted fervor in which she joins Tristan in death.

"A Kiss Affects Me Most of All from "Amber Express"—book by Marc Connelly of "Green Pastures" fame and music by Zoel Parenteau, noted composer, now musical director at KDKA—is to be sung by Frederick C. Rodgers on the Pioneer concert at 10 o'clock tonight. Winners in the $10,000 radio receiver contest are to be announced.

Plans for a rocket journey from New York to Paris and there 75 hr. hours and return are to be discussed by Dr. Robert Esnault-Pelterie, French scientist, on WJAR at 7:30 this evening.

QUESTION A DAY

Whale-watching features are to be continued this year. Edgar D. Rochester, Pa.

Answer—Thirty-seven of the more popular ones have been put on the dotted line. These include Amos 'n' Andy, Gene and Glenn, Phil Cook, who threatened to retire in June; the Revelers, Jessica Dragonette and the Cavaliers. Sherlock Holmes, Crumit and Sanderson.

An envelope addressed to Lou Wood Gloria was designated as meaning Ludwig Lazarof when received at NBC recently.

Benny Rubin's invitation to "Kum Down, Keep Amused" at KDKA's Theater Party last night was taken seriously by almost a thousand people, who packed the studio corridors and William Penn lobby. The invitation appeared exclusively in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

* * *

Edna St. Vincent Millay, one of our better modern poets, makes her debut over the WJZ-KDKA network tomorrow night at 10:45. "A fig from a thistle," we might say, when a poet stays up that late to burn the candle at both ends.

ECZEMA
Itching Skin

If you want instant relief just apply Peterson's Ointment. The minute this soothing and great healing Ointment touches your inflamed, irritated skin—you obtain blessed comfort. Generally you need only a few applications to completely end this distressing condition.

Always have Peterson's Ointment on hand. Can't beat it for quickly healing chafed, irritated, erupted skin, for eczema and bad cases of pimples and blackheads.

H. A. Daniels of Hartford, Conn., writes: "For 6 months I was bothered with Eczema—it would itch so I could tear it to pieces. I had lotions and different Ointments which did no good. I saw your ad in the Hartford Times and I went and got a box of Peterson's and in one night it almost disappeared."

The mighty healing power of Peterson's Ointment overcomes Eczema and one 25c box will prove it. All drug stores.

PASTOR SCORES EXPLOITATION

Political and economic exploitation has received the rebuke of the pastor of the Negro church. The Rev. C. B. Allen, Negro pastor of the Bethesda Presbyterian Church, East Liberty, who spoke on "The Disgraced World" at a meeting of the Presbyterian Ministerial Association in First Church, Sixth avenue, yesterday.

Reviewing conditions in India, Africa and America, he said:

"The Negro and other colored races have been discriminated against in industry, segregated in society and exploited commercially.

"He has been disfranchised. He has been lynched. And always he has been a subject person, instead of an equal citizen."

Discussion was led by the Rev. B. F. Glaze.

Frank Phillips reviewed the book "Rebels or Men." The Rev. G. J. Slosser, professor of church history at the Western Theological Seminary and president of the association, presided.

PRUNES

No sense to soak prunes overnight, not if they're SUNSWEETS.

Just put them into a dish or pan, cover with cold water, let stand a few minutes, then drain and they're ready to eat.

Or you may add a little more water and cook for a few minutes. Then you'll have delicious prunes and delicious juices.

Because they're SUNSWEETS. Prunes cooked this way should be of the finest.

There is as much difference in prunes as in anything you buy.

SUNSWEETS are the cream of California's crop, rich in digestible fruit sugar, mineral salts and valuable vitamins. Gently laxative, too. Good for every member of the family.

Sealed in 1- and 2-lb cartons to keep them clean and fresh.

In Saving 'Young Sinners' Elmer Harris Tells Us 'Treat 'Em Rough'

By GEORGE SIBEL

George Seibel.

Elmer [illegible] the plays at the Nixon, has invited us to see "Young Sinners," which is called a comedy, and he wants to tell parents how not to bring [illegible]. But as the play unfolded at the Art Direction last night the suspicion arose that maybe Elmer Harris is just a mask, like William Shakespeare, whose plays were written by a certain Francis Bacon, assisted by Mrs. Potiphar Detour.

"Young Sinners" looks like a collaboration between Vina Delmar and Louisa Alcott. For Miss Alcott is reported to be dead, so perhaps this theory of authorship will have to be abandoned. Anyway, it's a good theme and so's the play.

The opening scene of "Young Sinners" is at Palm Beach and teems with all the concentrated wickedness of that modern Babylon. We see various exhibitions of adolescent iniquity which are known in the collegiate dictionary as necking and petting. We see the terrible effects of Rum in the Volstead Era. And we see a young maiden about to be married off to an Austrian baron, in whose family insanity is reported to rage [illegible] exhibits more [illegible] called [illegible].

A Great Expense Account

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

when you practice your speech in front of a mirror.

So, therefore, we favor a third session of Congress, if it's only to discover what happened to the other two.

Still, the Wickersham acrostic can be read three or four ways. In some spots it avoids the subject like a cat stepping around a puddle. In others it comforts the bereaved, reveals the future, but fails to reunite the separated.

If you don't care for the whole leopard skin you can pick out the spot you like.

It's densely populated with words and will flutter down in history as a masterly document for wrapping up picnic lunches.

Wickersham did two things in 20 months. He wrote a thesis and an expense account.

As an authority on the swindle sheet we compliment him on the expense account.

The Wickersham report combines all the beauty of a marathon preamble with all the comfort of a cross-word puzzle.

It took the commission 18 months to discover what a rummy finds out in a night.

The writer is for law and order. Even if his pictures don't look it.

He is so much for law and order that he would like to see them merge.

Six of the 11 members of the commish are individually for repeal, revision or more liberty smothered in amendments.

It required a public expenditure of $500,000 to steam up this gigantic preface. And if that's the apple that keeps the doctor away there is nothing left to do but call the ambulance.

We believe that Mr. Wickersham and his noble squad are actuated and motivated by the finest brand of ideals. They are for their country, right or wrong. Which keeps anybody busy all the time.

If you were only for your country when it was right you would get a long vacation in summer and also go south in the winter.

But the only tangible result was to make bootleggers hang out the sign:

"Business as usual during alterations."

We concede it is easy enough to criticize the Wickersham Commission. You might ask why we don't go out and do something. We did. That's the reason there's a Wickersham Commission.

Some of the members favor the Swedish plan of liquor control. That's not so good. They break too many tables and chairs.

Others are for revision of the amendment that started this price war.

Some want it repealed entirely and control given to the government, states and cities.

But don't think the report is not without its merits. It will always be a threat to boisterous children who will have to stay after school and read it.

Injured Boy Goes To Hoover Home

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 27.—(AP.)—Tommy Watson, 13, who lost a leg in a street car accident here several weeks ago, left St. Luke's Hospital for President Herbert Hoover's home at Stanford University, where he will convalesce.

Tommy is a brother of Mrs. Herbert Hoover, Jr. Shortly after he was injured the President and Mrs. Hoover invited him to regain his strength in their home.

Cruelty Charge Wins Man, 77, Divorce

GREENSBURG, Pa., Jan. 27.—Hiram B. Vough, 77, of Mt. Pleasant, has been granted a divorce here from Amanda Jane Vough, 54, on the grounds of cruelty. He declared his wife ridiculed his infirmities and choked him almost into unconsciousness on more than one occasion.

Fire in Home Laid To Overheating

Damage estimated at $200 resulted last night from a fire in the home of S. H. Schram, at 712 Ivy street, said to have been caused by an overheated furnace. The dwelling is a three-story frame.

WOMAN DIES OF BURNS

Hiam suffered January 6 when her clothing ignited while she was using her child's hair, which had been washed in oil, caused the death early today in St. John's Hospital of Mrs. Mattie Hoffman, 32, of 716 Parkwood road. Mt. Oliver, the coroner's office reported.

The mother's clothing saturated with the oil ignited from a stove, county coroner's said.

Hockey in Shade, Baseball in Sun, January Menu

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Jan. 27. Summer weather in January resulted in outdoor hockey and baseball being played at the same time yesterday. A densely shaded section of Ten Mile Creek, where four inches of ice remains from past cold spells, made the hockey possible, while a temperature at times above 50 degrees and summer-like sunshine resulted in an impromptu baseball game being staged in adjoining field.

ANNEX PETITION SUBMITTED

Council yesterday received a petition from a number of property owners asking that a portion of Reserve Township be annexed to the city. The paper was headed by Henry R. Stucky, of 2506 Mt. View road.

At the same time Council accepted a resolution authorizing City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt to prepare a petition to the Court of Quarter Sessions for an addition to a portion of Penn annexed to the city in the Thirteenth Ward.

SIDEWALKS —of— PITTSBURGH
By William Pfaff

At the inauguration in Harrisburg last week, Frank L. Duggan, the race mogul, was having dinner in the dining room of the Harrisburger Hotel when Judge Sara Soffel arose from an adjoining table, at which she was eating with ex-Senator Grundy, and approached Mr. Duggan.

Mr. Pfaff

"Come over here, Senator, and settle a friendly bet I have with Mr. Grundy," Judge Soffel asked Mr. Duggan, who isn't a senator at all. Mr. Duggan went over.

"Now, Senator, tell Mr. Grundy you're Senator Harris."

"But I'm not," Mr. Duggan objected, and Judge Soffel opened her mouth wide in astonishment and Mr. Grundy smiled.

Judge Soffel's confusion was fairly excusable. Mr. Duggan and Senator Harris look alike. Hardly a day goes by but that one is mistaken for the other. The mistake in this case was marked because Judge Soffel has known Senator Harris for years.

Even at Amen Corner, of which both are members, friends who have known Mr. Duggan and Senator Harris all their lives can't identify them. As recently as last Saturday night Mr. Duggan dropped into the Amen rooms in the William Penn after Senator Harris had departed, and a friend looked up and said, "You've come back."

This seems to be phrenology month. Charlie Faulkner, the North Side police inspector, reports that at least 15 persons have asked his permission this month to go into the phrenology business in his district. A noted anti-phrenologist, so to speak, the good inspector has not only refused them all, but he has asked each of them how to spell the word. And he says not one could spell it. He says not even he can spell it.

The police don't seem to raid poker games these days. Possibly their attention is taken up by the speakeasies. Anyhow, there was a time the Hill police raided a game in the days when Louis Alpern was the magistrate for one district. Magistrate Alpern fined each of the players $15. One of them slapped 15 blue

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Jan. 27.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Well, here we are in old San Antone, one of the last surviving cities of our country where history has been made, and tradition and beauty preserved. Just flew in from Austin, the capital. Saw all my old friends Jim Ferguson, Dan Moody, Pat Neff, and the new governor who is mighty fat and able. Spoke before the legislature, but a comedian getting

PLAN COSTLY EAST LIBERTY CHURCH

FIREWORKS BAN LAID BEFORE COUNCIL

Garland Ordinance Forbids Sale and Use Except for Exhibitions on Permits

If the ordinance introduced in City Council yesterday by Robert Garland is passed and is signed by the Mayor, fireworks will be prohibited in Pittsburgh, except to organizations receiving special permits from the Department of Public Safety.

Possession, sale and use of fireworks would be regulated by the bill. A fine of $50 or 30 days in the workhouse is provided for violation.

PERMITS PROVIDED

Permits for special displays by lodges, organizations and other groups might be obtained from the Department of Public Safety 30 days in advance, and all such exhibitions would be under supervision of the fire department.

Garland's plan, which he has long advocated, was opposed several weeks ago by Director of Public Safety James M. Clark. The director suggested to Council that a "more moderate" method be used. Clark advised pyrotechnics be permitted, but that the sale be under rigid supervision of his department. Children under 12 years of age would not be permitted to buy them.

DEALERS PROTEST

A number of fireworks dealers protested that the prohibition of fireworks within the city limits would handicap a well-organized industry and add to unemployment. "Bootlegging" of pyrotechnics by dealers on the outskirts of the city would result, they declared.

Garland's ordinance will be acted upon in committee this week.

I Held in Liquor, Slot Machine Raid

Tony Weiss, 40, of Lowry's Run road, Ross Township, today was at liberty under $2,500 bail pending court trial following a hearing last night before Justice of the Peace Fred Bell, of Glenfield on charges of possession of liquor and a gambling device. Constables William Berg, of Avalon, and John Sebig, of Kilbuck Township, the arresting officers, testified they seized three and one-half gallons of moonshine and a slot machine when they raided Weiss' home Saturday.

$551,737 in Refund Given Frick Kin

Income tax refunds and credits amounting to $551,737 to Adelaide H. C. Frick and Helen C. Frick, of Pittsburgh, have been announced by the Bureau of Internal Revenue. The overassessments were caused by the elimination of income in the tax returns of amounts erroneously included and for other reasons. Adelaide H. C. Frick received a refund of $410,711 and the later a refund and credit of $141,026.

GEN. MITCHELL LAUDS CHIEF IN AIR PROGRESS

Says Pershing Put U. S. to Fore in Air Fighting, but Finds Service Unfit Now

Herewith Gen. William Mitchell, chief of the A. E. F. Air Service overseas, tells the inside story of the birth of the first air combat force of the United States, crediting Gen. Pershing with its organization.

(Copyright, 1931, by the North American Newspaper Alliance.)

By REX COLLIER.

MIDDLEBURG, Va., Jan. 25.—Indulging in war reminiscences at his palatial home near here, Gen. William Mitchell, gentleman stock raiser and farmer and erstwhile chief of the A. E. F. Air Service, today told the "inside story" of the birth of America's first combat air force.

In an interview in a den filled with trophies of the war and the hunt, Gen. Mitchell credited Gen. John J. Pershing with organizing the nation's pioneer military aviation corps. He declared:

"Gen. Pershing tells the absolute truth about our miserable aviation plight at the outset of the war. He was quick to perceive the vital importance of an air force at the front, and to him is due the credit for the creation of the crack flying service we had in France."

There was no real air force prior to the World War, Gen. Mitchell said, in recalling repeated efforts of himself and a few others to develop governmental interest in aviation.

The veteran flier was asked to sketch conditions before the war. He said:

"I took my first examination in aviation in 1901. It was a dozen years later that our first aviation appropriation was granted by Congress. There was a little group of army officers who were deeply interested in flying. Col. T. De Witt Milling, Col. Charley Chandler and myself used to go out to College Park and watch the Wright brothers in their contraptions.

"I remember one day we discussed the feasibility of using an airplane to drop bombs on an enemy. Chandler, I think it was, filled his pockets with some oranges, went aloft and pelted the fruit at an object on the College Park field. That convinced me of the possibilities of aircraft in war.

"Col. Lewis, the machine gun inventor, came forward sometime later with his gun for airplanes. The army ordnance department turned the gun down, preferring the Benet-Mercie, which was objectionable to us because the cartridge belt threw shells into your face. Some of us liked the Lewis gun so much that Col. Lewis finally consented to present us with two of his guns. But we didn't have any ammunition to use with them, and when we applied for some, the ordnance department replied that none was available. So Col. Lewis then very kindly agreed to give us some ammunition, also.

Pershing Scores Washington for Lack of Vision

MY EXPERIENCES IN THE WORLD WAR

By JOHN J. PERSHING,

Commander-in-Chief, American Expeditionary Forces.

CHAPTER XVI.

Succeeding Chapters of "My Experiences in the World War" will appear daily and Sunday exclusively in the Sun-Telegraph.

Having learned that despite my recommendations little or no attention was being given at home to the importance of teaching our men the use of the rifle, it seemed necessary again to emphasize my views, especially after further knowledge of its neglect in Allied armies.

The infantry soldier, well-trained in stealthy approach and in the art of taking cover, makes a small target, and if an expert rifleman there is nothing that can take his place on the battlefield.

"Specialties of trench warfare at home," I cabled Washington September 24, 1917, "should not be allowed to interfere with rifle practice nor with intensive preliminary training in our schools of soldier, company and battalion."

On this latter point the following, which was dwelt upon in the A. E. F. with all vigor, was added:

"I cannot too strongly impress upon the War Department the absolute necessity of rigid insistence that all men be thoroughly grounded in the school of the soldier.

Gen. Pershing

"Salutes should be rendered by both officers and men in most military manner. The loyalty, readiness and alertness indicated by strictest adherence to this principle will immensely increase the pride and fighting spirit of our troops.

"The slovenly, unmilitary, careless habits that have grown up in times of peace in our army are seriously detrimental to the aggressive attitude that must prevail from highest to lowest in our forces. Strict methods used at West Point in training new cadets in these elementary principles have given the Academy its superior excellence. These methods should be applied vigorously and completely in the forces we are now organizing."

My diary notes the following:

"Chaumont, Wednesday, September 26, 1917. The French agree that we should retain exclusive jurisdiction over American soldiers in France. Find Capt. R. B. Owens, the head of electrics, University of Nebraska, when I was there, now Russell's assistant.

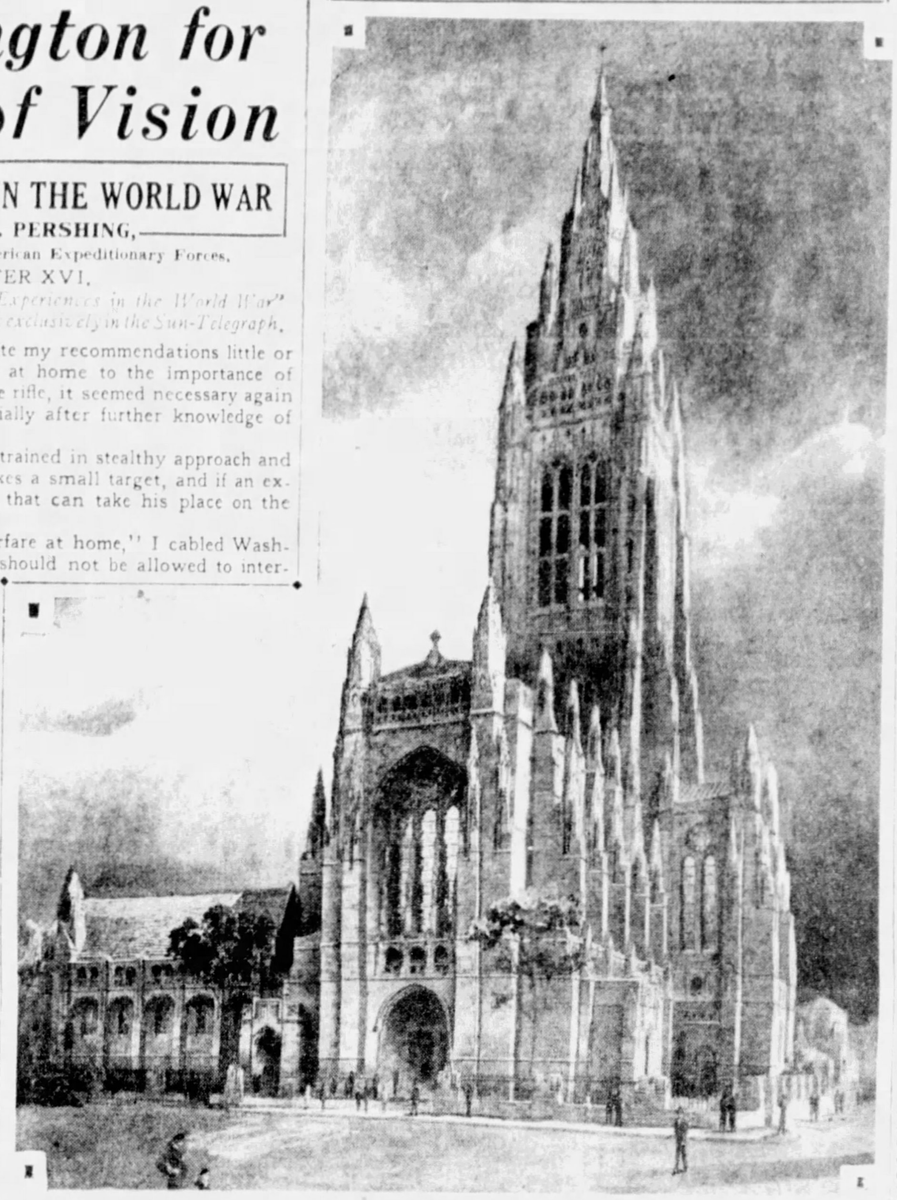
MELLON CHURCH PLAN



PENN AVENUE ELEVATION AND MAIN ENTRANCE FOR PROPOSED NEW E. LIBERTY CHURCH

Architect's Drawing by Cram and Ferguson.

The plan for a new, mighty building for the East Liberty Presbyterian Church, to be built on the present church site, Penn and Highland avenues, by Mr. and Mrs. Richard Beatty Mellon.

START WORK ON MELLON GIFT SOON

Presbyterian Edifice Will Cover Block; Parish House, Chapel, Mission Included

A magnificent Gothic edifice combining traditions of the century-old congregation with the most modern institutional facilities will be the new home of the East Liberty Presbyterian Church, officers of the congregation announced today.

Work on the structure, to cover the block bounded by Penn avenue, South Highland avenue, Baum boulevard and South Whitfield street, will start following farewell Easter services in the present building, which will be demolished.

COST IN MILLIONS

Representatives of the church decline to estimate the cost of the new edifice, a gift of Richard B. Mellon and his wife, Jennie King Mellon, who attended Sunday school and were married in the church. Current report, however, place the cost at millions. It is generally agreed it will be one of the finest church buildings in America.

In addition to the church proper, which will seat between 1,800 and 2,000, there will be a chapel, parish house, Sunday school building, and a mission which will be open day and night, containing rest room, showers, lunch counter and dormitory for the homeless and needy. Clothing will be provided by the deacons of the church for the destitute.

CELEBRATED ARCHITECT

The new church was designed by Ralph Adams Cram, noted Boston architect, a member of the firm of Cram & Ferguson. Among the edifices he has designed are the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, New York; the chapel and graduate school at Princeton University, and some of the buildings of the United States Military Academy at West Point.

Architecturally the church will be a modern treatment of the Gothic. It will be built of some light-colored stone, cruciform in plan, with an interior length of 200 feet, the nave 43 feet wide between columns and 67 feet including the aisles. The polygonal chancel is 44 feet in depth and the same width as the nave. The total height to the crown of the vault is 82 feet. The transepts give a width of 120 feet. A central tower 48 feet square will rise 350 feet to the top of the spire.

PROVIDE EXTRA SEATING

The aisles are separated from the nave by rather low arches, above which is a rich triforium, giving a passageway at this level entirely around the church, as well as offering opportunity for extra seating.

There will be 35 large lancet windows, three at the end of the nave and of each transept, the others in pairs encircling the edifice. These lancets are 4½ feet wide, 30 feet high and each pair is surmounted by a rose, giving op-

POSTAL CLERKS INDICTED

The federal grand jury today returned 22 indictments, including two against postal clerks, Richard F. Dawley, of the Girard (Pa.) postoffice, and Samuel M. Shrager, 26, of the downtown postoffice. Dawley, 28, and father of seven children, was charged with embezzling postal funds of $133. Shrager, 26, who lives in Eldridge street, was charged with stealing letters containing $7.50.

Milo Reyner and Reginald Carr, of Erie, were charged with smuggling beer into this country from Canada. Reyner has been on probation, having pleaded guilty last March to interfering with customs officers.

A woman in South Hills must sell her furniture, four rooms complete.

A nice room in a private home can be rented for $4.50 per week conveniently located in the East End.

A concern in the Chamber of Commerce Building must sacrifice its adding machines, desks, linoleum, oak partitions, lighting fixtures, a letter opener, etc.

Another woman offers a cabinet heating stove for sale, a three-piece living room suite for $25, a bedroom suite for $50.

CENSUS WORK SPEEDED HERE

Desiring figures on unemployment as complete as possible for the present Congress session, the Bureau of the Census has ordered the census office here to forward all district folios to Washington as soon as received and checked, James E. Routley, local supervisor, announced today. The count of more than half the homes in Pittsburgh had been completed when the census office closed last night, Routley said.

Several residents of the East Liberty district refused to answer the questionnaire when the enumerator visited them yesterday. On being warned by telephone of the penalty for failing to comply, all but one supplied the necessary answers.

PRANK PERILING 50 REPORTED CONFESSED

Lad, 13, Said to Admit He Placed Stones on Track; Pair on Bail for Hearing

Two Ingomar boys, one 13 and the other 14, were at liberty on $2,500 bond today following their arrest last night in connection with the derailment of the Butler-bound interurban car of the Pittsburgh, Harmony, Butler and New Castle Railroad near Ingomar January 16.

The two boys arrested by State Trooper George F. Abbott were brought to the office of Alderman Martin J. Griffin at 2040 Center avenue, where bond pending a hearing Thursday afternoon was posted. They were charged with malicious injury to a railroad.

Stones placed on the tracks derailed the car in which more than 50 persons, mostly school children, were riding. The trolley leaped to the adjoining tracks and snapped four telephone and power poles, throwing Ingomar into darkness.

The younger boy, according to Abbott and Thomas Quigley, an inspector for the company, admitted placing the stones on the tracks while the older boy was with him as a prank. Because of their youth, the Sun-Telegraph will not publish their names.

The entire interior is of stone vaulted throughout in masonry giving a cathedral effect.

The main entrance will be from Penn avenue through a vestibule 16 by 67 feet. At the extreme opposite end of the auditorium is a chapel, seating 350 persons and paralleling Penn avenue. This chapel will contain art glass and many of the furnishings of the old church. Behind the nave is an assembly room, seating 500. This is provided with a stage and dressing rooms. On the same level are a large kitchen, cafeteria and serving room.

There are several approaches to the assembly room from the church proper, the Sunday school room and from the streets. Expert advice was obtained in planning the Sunday school building and parish house, which will contain the latest features for Christian education and social service activities. Each class will have its own room. The rooms will be suited to a church vacation school and week-day school of religion.

Recreational facilities will include provision for bowling, basketball and handball. In addition there are suites for executive offices, rooms for collections of mission curios, a library and instruction in hymnology.

The parish house extends along Baum boulevard and Highland avenue and connects with the large chapel at the Penn avenue side, and forming within a large cloistered court 60 by 70 feet in which there will be a pool and fountain, flowers, shrubs and possibly small trees.

BOY BARRED AT SLAYING TRIAL

A seven-year-old boy, witness to the fatal shooting of Claud C. Skaggs, 43, for whose slaying Louis Lewis, Negro of Gibbon street, is being tried in Criminal Court, was not permitted to testify today.

Assistant District Attorney George F. P. Langfitt asked the boy, Harry Bottles, of Forbes street, if he knew what would happen if he told a lie. The youngster instantly retorted:

"I'll go down to the devil."

He was adjudged too youthful to testify.

Mrs. Sarah Skaggs, widow of the slain man, said her husband had been playing a game with the boy when Lewis approached with his wife. Mrs. Skaggs testified Lewis said to her husband:

"You think you're hard, don't you?"

Then he shoved Skaggs, she said, and took a revolver from his pocket and shot him over Mrs. Lewis' shoulder while the boy looked on.

The commonwealth is expected to complete its case this afternoon.

Previous testimony was that Lewis' wife had been seated in Skaggs' car parked in front of his house and Skaggs ordered her away.

Feel Run Down and Out of Sorts

If you do you're probably suffering from vitamin starvation. Any doctor will tell you that the average normal diet doesn't supply half enough vitamins. That's why you get cross and grumpy—tired and run down.

To correct this condition doctors here are urging the wider use of cod liver oil. But don't take it the old fashioned nasty way. Take cod liver oil in easy, tasteless tablets.

McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets give you all the vitamins . . . all the healthful benefits of the liquid oil . . . everything but that fishy, oily taste. That's why these tablets have been approved by the experts of Good Housekeeping Institute.

So, to avoid the dangers that come with vitamin starvation, go to your druggist and get a box of McCoy's today. Take them regularly, and faithfully just as you would take any other food. New pep, new health and vigor will be your sure reward. 60 tablets—60 cents.

We found the MISSING HUSBAND half-way down the block

THE electric clock above the telephone board in our Detroit house showed the hour as half past three. The noonday rush had passed. The girls relaxed.

But suddenly one of them snapped erect. There was clamor on one of her incoming lines. She plugged in, and heard a voice announcing, "Grand Rapids calling Statler . . . Ready with Grand Rapids!"

Then instantly there was an excited voice saying, "I must get my husband at once! Find him for me, please."

"What is your husband's name?" our operator asked.

"Sanders. Joel Sanders."

"Is he registered in the hotel?"

"No! No! He isn't registered. We live in Detroit. And I was to drive back to Detroit today and meet him . . . at three . . . by the Washington Boulevard door. But something has happened. My father is . . . is," the voice trailed off, and came back weakly . . . "very ill, and I need my husband now."

In a moment the manager was on the wire, and a moment later two bell boys had been dispatched with orders not to come back without Mr. Sanders.

One boy started through the house. The other sped to the Washington Boulevard entrance and called, "Mister Sanders! Mister Sanders!" There was no response. He crossed the lobby to the opposite door and called again. And again there was no reply.

He returned to the Washington Boulevard door, looked down the street . . . and got an idea — "Mr. Sanders grew tired of waiting, went window shopping!" So he hurried down the sidewalk crying out, "Mister Sanders! Mister Sanders!" And half way down the block he found his man.

Mr. Sanders rushed back to the hotel and talked with his wife. And while he was assuring her he would catch the very first train, we were looking up schedules for him. When he hung up, we put him in a taxi and sent him with our Godspeed on his way.

And Mr. Sanders was not that day a guest in our hotel.

But that didn't matter, really. As we said to Mr. Sanders when he later expressed his appreciation, "We try to do the helpful thing."

In truth, our whole business philosophy is in these words. And always has been. Our job is giving service. In the years we have owned and operated hotels we have never deviated from our early creed which says, "The guest is always right and must be served."

Undoubtedly you will remember something of the record of those years. You may even recall that the original Statler was the first hotel to offer a private bath and circulating ice water with every room. That a morning paper under the door, radio reception in every room and countless other things were Statler innovations. And that, indeed, the Statler pattern was accepted long ago as the model for the modern hotel.

COUNTY ORDERS ASPINWALL BRIDGE-DAM PLANS

An Upheaval In Wall St.

JOINT PROJECT NOW DEEMED PROBABLE

Combined Construction on Allegheny River Declared Feasible by Engineers

A combination bridge and dam over the Allegheny River at Aspinwall may be built by the county and the federal government.

Today the County Commissioners instructed their engineers to draw up plans for such a bridge in co-operation with government engineers.

The Commissioners ordered the plans after hearing the request of a delegation of Fox Chapel residents for a bridge at Aspinwall.

Engineers assert the combination is practical whether a high or low dam is built, although the construction would probably be less costly in the high dam.

FAVOR LOW DAM

Government engineers have been inclined to favor the low dam because it would involve little change in the present pool level and not much property damage. It is estimated the construction of the bridge on the dam would save the county approximately $500,000.

A hearing has also been granted to aviation interests at Bettis Field regarding the schedule of rates which will prevail at the new county airport.

WILL LET CONTRACTS

Contracts will be awarded today on the improvement of Elwyn road, Baldwin Township; Center avenue, West View; on gravel for the new airport, and on school record printing.

Bids will be opened on malleable iron beams and gratings for the remodeled prison farm buildings at Parkview, the construction of a new bridge and removal of an existing bridge over Flaugherty's Run, Moon Township, and construction of a new sidewalk and handrailing for the bridge over Douglas Run, near Sutersville.

Fall From Window Kills Baby at Play

Eighteen-month-old Michael Albert, of 1626 Bedford avenue, died last night in Passavant Hospital from a fractured skull suffered several hours before in an 18-foot fall from a second-story window of his home, according to the coroner's report.

The child, who was playing with a toy airplane, was said to have climbed onto a table, walked towards an open window and fell to the concrete sidewalk.

City-County Building Loitering Barred

WOMEN EXCEL AS ENGINEERS

Heating and ventilating might be a subject with which the mind immediately associates an engineering man, but among the several hundred delegates to the American Society of Heating and Ventilating Engineers convention in session at the William Penn Hotel is one woman member, Mrs. Olive E. Frank, of Buffalo. She controls the destiny of a concern doing a half million dollar business yearly.

And there is a second woman engineer, Miss Margaret Ingels, of New York City and a former Pittsburgher, holder of the honor of being the only member of her sex specializing on air conditioning. She has specialized for 13 years, besides devoting three additional years to engineering.

They are two of five women members, though the only ones attending the convention.

Mrs. Frank is not only president and general manager of the O. E. Frank Heater and Engineering Company, Inc., of Buffalo, but also directs the sales division. There is a branch factory at Niagara Falls, Ontario, from which Canadian business is conducted.

Mrs. Frank founded her business in 1924, but her husband, Harry S. Frank, now a salesman in the company, had no contact with it until last year.

COMING TO TOWN OLIVER TWIST

GEN. MITCHELL LAUDS CHIEF

1911 or 1912, I'm not certain which, by Col. Chandler.

"When the war came we had no artillery, no grenades and no machine guns to speak of. Before we entered the war I tried to arouse the interest of the General Staff, of which I was a member at the time, with the rank of captain. The staff could not get interested. I told the General Staff America was bound to be drawn into the war—that there was no way out of it—and I drew up a definite plan for formation of an air force in the event of war.

"I was in a hotel at Toledo, Spain, on April 6, 1917, when I was advised that the United States had declared war on Germany. Immediately I took a train for the frontier and arrived in Paris on April 8.

"I applied to the ambassador for permission to visit the French front. Gen. Petain took me to the front so I could see some of the actual fighting and look over their artillery, planes and so forth. Incidentally, I was the first American officer under fire in the war, as a result of that trip to the front, and also the first to fly over the German lines.

"Returning to Paris, I organized an aeronautical office with $2,000 of my own money and some additional funds contributed by friends. We got the French to take Americans from their ambulance service and put them in aviation schools. We could have put about 15 or 20 air squadrons in the field by July of that year, as a result of this training."

Gen. Mitchell pointed to a reference in Gen. Pershing's war story to a cablegram from the French asking for 4,500 airplanes from America. He said:

"I'll let you in on a secret about that telegram. I shaped that message up for the French officials to send. We worked the wording at a dinner I had with them about a month after America entered the war. But the message didn't do any good. There was no reply from the United States.

"Despite the many handicaps imposed on us, we succeeded in developing a splendid body of fliers who performed bravely and efficiently. I am very proud of a letter Gen. Pershing sent me after our first air offensive, expressing appreciation of our work."

Gen. Mitchell mused:

"We had a pretty good air force by the time the war was over, but instead of keeping up the good work, America has slipped back tragically. We may have learned some other lessons from the war, but we have surely failed to profit by what we learned about military aviation.

"The next war will be fought in the air—and we are still on the ground!"

AIR-TREATMENT DISCUSSED BY ENGINEERS

Ventilating Society Told Fresh Ozone Non-Existent; See Windowless Homes

Fresh air is non-existent, according to F. Paul Anderson, dean of engineering at University of Kentucky, attending the convention of the American Society of Heating and Ventilating Engineers at the William Penn Hotel.

The opening of a window to obtain outside air does not mean getting fresh air, Dean Anderson contended today. The outside air can be filled with dirt, too much moisture, be too dry or have other harmful ingredients. The air conditioned by engineers is the closest to being fresh air, he contended.

Because of advances of the profession, buildings of the future will be windowless, he predicted since outside air is unnecessary. Artificial lighting today improves on daylight, he added.

Development of the ventilating system of the Holland Tunnel under the Hudson river, was discussed by A. C. Davis, assistant superintendent in the construction work. Other speakers of the day included Prof. G. L. Larson, D. S. Boyden, John D. Cassell, C. W. Farrar, Warren Ewald, G. T. Stanton and R. F. Norris. Air conditioning of railway cars was a talk given by A. H. Candee.

RECIPE TO DARKEN GRAY HAIR

You Can Make a Better Gray Hair Remedy Than You Can Buy.

Gray, streaked or faded hair is not only unbecoming, but unnecessary.

Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home that will darken gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. To a half-pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ oz. of glycerine.

These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost, or the druggist will put it up for you. Apply to the hair twice a week, until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It is easy to use, does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off.

Stubborn Coughs Ended by Recipe, Mixed at Home

Here is the famous old recipe which millions of housewives have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up a stubborn, lingering cough. It takes but a moment to prepare and costs little, but it gives real relief even for those dreaded coughs that follow severe cold epidemics.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. Thus you make a full pint of better remedy than you could buy ready-made for three times the cost. It never spoils and tastes so good that even children like it.

Not only does this simple mixture soothe and heal the inflamed throat membranes with surprising ease, but also it is absorbed into the blood, and acts directly upon the bronchial tubes, thus aiding the whole system in throwing off the cough. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm and eases chest soreness in a way that is really astonishing.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form. Nothing known in medicine is more helpful in cases of distressing coughs, chest colds, and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

Acid Stomach Is Dangerous

Sufferers From Indigestion CUT THIS OUT

Stomach trouble, dyspepsia, indigestion, sourness, gas, heartburn, food fermentation, etc., are caused nine times in ten by "too much acid" in the stomach.

The acid irritates and inflames the delicate stomach lining and often leads to gastritis or dangerous stomach ulcers. Never dose an acid stomach with artificial digestants that give merely temporary relief. You must get at the cause.

The best plan is to neutralize or sweeten your acid stomach after meals with a little "Bisurated" Magnesia. Then not only will the pain and sourness quickly vanish but your food will digest properly as nature intended.

Be sure to use genuine Bisurated Magnesia. There is nothing better to settle an upset acid stomach. You feel fine in five minutes. All May-Liggett stores and reliable druggists everywhere say it must give complete satisfaction or its small cost will be returned. Bisurated Magnesia comes in both powder and convenient tablet form. Handy to carry about, easy to use, not a laxative and, for making a disordered stomach do its duty, it works like a charm.

Pershing Criticizes War Department for Lack of Vision

ington delays store house construction by requesting views of French commissioner regarding our necessities. Col. Keen, Medical Department, just arrived, assigned to command medical units with British. Frederick Palmer spent last night with us.

"Have again cabled relative to carelessness and delay in loading of transports."

Jurisdiction Retained

The War Department had brought up the question of civil jurisdiction over the members of our forces in France and had inquired regarding the attitude of the French. A committee of the American Bar Association, being of the opinion that counsel and advice might be needed, had offered the free services of several of their members familiar with French laws and language.

My judge advocate, Col. W. A. Bethel, presented our opinion to the French authorities, which was that according to the principles of international law and in view of the conditions under which the American Army was serving in France its members should not be subject to criminal prosecution in French courts but should be answerable only to our military tribunals. This view was readily accepted by the French and military property in the jurisdiction over persons, both civil and military, remained in our hands.

Col. Bethel

With reference to storage for ordnance, as noted in my diary, a very careful calculation had been made of our requirements, and sites for three large depots and shops were selected at Gievres, Meheun and Forey, besides storage depots at the ports of St. Nazaire and Bordeaux and in the forward area at Is-sur-Tille and Jonchery. There were also many smaller plants at various point in the S. O. S. As to construction with the exception of special repair shops, it had been requested that the matter be left in the hands of my chief of ordnance. Satisfactory types of building had been developed by the French and British and the organization of our ordnance department was such that the work could be done by men on the ground.

Much Time Lost

However, the chief of ordnance in Washington was apparently unwilling to accept our calculation and asked the French Commission at Washington to obtain the views of the French on the subject. The commissioner transmitted the request to his government and the government sent it to Gen. Petain, who, of course, referred the question to me. My reply, which went direct to Washington, naturally supported the original recommendation.

At the times it seemed that the last refinement was being invoked to cause delay.

The following cable regarding the incident was sent to the Chief of Staff:

"'This endless chain should clearly indicate the necessity of handling such matters direct with my headquarters. Ordnance officers here capable of managing this construction work thus leaving to Chief of Ordnance more important duties and decentralizing his office as to details that should be handled here. Request approval of my recommendation and reply by cable.

"'Again recommend that all requests for information required by our War Department be sent direct to these headquarters, as invariably such matters are referred here by French either directly or indirectly.'"

It appeared to be difficult for some of the bureaus of the War Department to think in terms of a World War, and they naturally hesitated to make decisions on questions involving the large requirements in supply, construction and material. If they had only realized the pressing necessity for early preparation and had accepted the views of the men on the spot, it would have saved time and patience.

Requests Disregarded

As a matter of fact, my cables were too often regarded merely as recommendations which the bureaus might approve or not, as they chose. This conception of their functions was entirely erroneous in that there had been no previous study of these questions made at home and they could not, from that distance, know what we needed as well as we ourselves knew. Moreover, in principle it was simply their duty to furnish the Army what it asked for, if possible, as otherwise we could not be held responsible for results.

As pertinent to this disregard of my requests in some quarters of the War Department, we received on a certain date confidential cable service of sailings that were to take place from New York which had been furnished the French representative nine days earlier. After protesting once more against the dangerous practice of giving this sort of advance information to the French, the Chief of Staff at Washington finally stated that it would be discontinued entirely.

Up to this time we were not getting the full use of even the limited shipping at our disposal, as the average time for a round trip of our transports, estimated to be 40 days, was being exceeded considerably. The delay was partly due to our inability to discharge rapidly at French ports on departure was shown by the fact that the average time of the first 12 transports to make the round trip from St. Nazaire was over 60 days.

Useless Things Shipped

There was ample evidence of great confusion at home due to lack of efficient supervision, even in New York harbor where experts should have been easy to find. Ships were seldom loaded to their full capacity, supplies greatly needed were often left behind, non-essentials were being sent over, troops were often shipped to one port and their equipment to another.

The Washington bureaus often followed blindly some out of date supply table, perhaps drawn up under a former regime by an antiquated desk soldier long since retired and forgotten. As an illustration, I recall a bill of lading from one of our transports that was presented to me about this time as a curiosity. It listed a number of articles quite useless to an army in the field and provoked the following cable:

"For all departments. Recommend no further shipments be made of following articles: Bath bricks, bookcases, bathtubs, cabinets for blanks, chairs except folding chairs, cuspidors, office desks, floor wax, hose except fire hose, stepladders, lawn mowers, refrigerators, safes except iron field safes, settees, sickles, stools, window shades. Further stop orders will follow soon."

I have often wondered what manner of man was responsible for shipping such things, whether on supply tables or not, thereby wasting tonnage when winter clothing, building material, steel and a lot of real necessities were being delayed.

Stevedores Needed

All of these facts suggested a condition of affairs during those earlier months that must have paralleled the inefficiency displayed in the management of our transport system in the Spanish-American War, a comparison that was frankly stated in the following cable, October 10, 1917:

"Assignment of Medical Department with troops heretofore arriving indicates lack of supervision.

"The field hospital ambulance company that came with 26th Division arrived without any except personnel equipment and without transportation of any kind. Regimental detachments came with combat equipment only. Medical officers report their equipment was loaded on ships on which they sailed but prior to sailing it was taken off and sent on other ships. Manner in which these regiments come to France does not indicate much improvement over conditions Spanish-American War. . . ."

It was then nearly six months after we had entered the war, and no system at points of embarkation was yet apparent.

We were short-handed, both at depots and along the line of communications, in all classes of labor that should have been sent over long before. The Quartermaster Corps in France was seriously handicapped in handling, caring for and issuing its stores and supplies.

The need for stevedores had become most urgent. Combat troops were still being used to unload cargo and much time was wasted by the use of labor that was entirely unsuitable for this sort of work through lack of experience, training, were anxious that our Moreover, it was urgent that the most advanced American unit combat troops should be sent inland to relieve their battle instruction. The French, although short themselves, had loaned us a few prisoners and also some women as laborers to help out, but neither class was satisfactory. Under the conditions there was danger that our ports would become hopelessly congested although three weeks late and after further urgent appeals the War Department promised to send stevedores at once.

Necessity Doubted

From our point of view it was not understood why any number of laborers, both skilled and unskilled, should not have been sent to France promptly. It may be stated, however, that it was more than hinted that there existed in administration circles a lingering hope that after all it might not be necessary to send large numbers of men abroad. There were other indications that this might have been the reason the delay in sending over troops. The slowness in beginning the preparation of cantonments, and in organizing the ports of embarkation.

There was also an apparent failure to utilize all available shipping to send abroad material for the construction of docks and railways. All these apparent delinquencies could be explained on the above hypothesis and it is not easy to explain them otherwise unless it be conceded that there existed in Washington in those earlier months a lack of comprehension of the importance, the urgency and the immensity of the task or want of leadership in handling it.

The French now came forward with an urgent plea for mechanics for airplane construction, claiming that we had promised to furnish them. Whatever the understanding may have been, it was manifest that we should not be likely to get many airplanes unless we made an effort to provide them additional help. Accordingly the matter was fully explained to the War Department and a request made for 3,000 mechanics in November, a like number in December and 6,000 in January.

Americans Seek Action

The French offered some of their slow ships to carry them across, but it was not regarded as safe at that time to employ transports under 16 knots in speed as they could not be sent with the regular convoys. The War Department approved the request for mechanics but concluded that our shipping could transport them as fast as they were ready.

My diary notes the following:

"Chaumont, Thursday, October 4, 1917. Gen. de Castelnau called Tuesday to discuss entry of 1st Division in the line.

Mr. Sharp

"Witnessed attack maneuver of the division yesterday and conducted critique.

"Ambassador Sharp came today with Mr. Joseph Reinach for a visit and had lunch with us. Have cabled appeal for officers fitted for General Staff."

The French, always solicitous regarding the progress of our work through lack of experience, training, were anxious that our

Boys Show Efficiency

At the Division School the bayonet exercises, special target practice, firing with trench mortars, bomb throwing and other trench training were well carried out. I returned much pleased with the evidences of efficiency in this organization, which was later to become famous among the armies on the Western Front.

My diary says:

"Paris, Wednesday, October 10, 1917. Spent Sunday at Gondrecourt, 1st Division field meet, with Gen. Harbord, Gen. Ragueneau and Representative Medill McCormick. We lunched with Bullard.

Mr. McCormick

"Yesterday evening the officers at G. H. Q. called to extend congratulations on confirmation of my appointment as general. All heads of permanent staff departments appointed to grade of brigadier general.

"A group of major generals are over on tour of inspection."

The staff department heads who became brigadier generals at that time were James G. Harbord, chief of staff; Benjamin Alvord, adjutant general; Harry L. Rogers, quartermaster general; W. A. Bethel, judge advocate general; Edgar Russel, chief of Signal Corps; G. C. Williams, chief of ordnance, and A. E. Bradley, chief surgeon.

New Officers Arrive

In accordance with my recommendation, division commanders from the States were being sent over to visit the battlefield armies and schools in order to become acquainted with conditions and to experience the atmosphere of war. It was important that they should appreciate the realities and become fully impressed with the urgency of thorough preparation of their commands. It was thought they would become impressed with the aggressive spirit that characterized our training in France by coming into close touch with our methods.

These officers were sent to visit the Allied fronts and to see demonstrations at our own training fields and schools and were also taken along the line of communications. I took occasion to give them personally my conception of the course of training that should be followed at home, making an especial point of rigid discipline, rifle practice and the instruction of junior officers in open warfare.

A number of the officers sent over were either physically unfit or had reached the age when new ideas fail to make much of an impression and consequently I recommended that those of both classes be left at home for other duty or to be retired.

Fay King Analyzing Women With Various Types of Eyes Finds Good in All

By FAY KING.

We associate blue eyes with romance. The pale beauty of a blonde makes her a romantic ideal.

Yet many a blonde is not so gentle and demure as she looks. She often has great executive ability behind that baby stare, and is a pitiless driver where her greed and ambition are concerned.

And gray eyes, which we associate with conquerors and explorers, are often found where there is only a gentle self-sacrificing nature with no inclination for leadership at all.

Dark eyes are supposed to belong to those most faithful and loyal, devoted to home and family. Yet brown eyes have figured in some of the world's greatest romances—and mischief.

But one can never generalize. The best is found in all types.

Influenza Largely a Hand Borne Disease

Dr. Copeland

Many of the cases of influenza that are passed on to others start with a spotted infection. For this reason one should wash the hands frequently and attend carefully to the toilet of the mouth and nose. All children should be taught these things.

An influenza patient should be isolated from others. The household utensils used by the patient such as dishes and silver should be thoroughly boiled after use. Everything touched by the patient's hands, such as bedclothes, towels, [illegible] should be thoroughly boiled before being used by another person.

When influenza is prevalent, it is important to have plenty of fresh air, diet and light. Get all the sunlight possible and simple food. Have regular exercise and regular habits of living. In this way you build up resistance to the infectious diseases. Above all else, don't worry.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

An Honor to the Bride's Absent Mother

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am going to be married soon and have a large company and reception. What is disturbing me is that my mother has been ill in a sanitarium for a long time and will not be able to be here. How shall my invitations be worded? I do not think they should read Mr. and Mrs. John Doe, under the circumstances, do you, and yet I want my mother's name to appear on the invitation as she is very dear to me.

Please help me. E. G.

The last part of your last sentence settles the question, I think. It is so sweet and indicates such deep devotion that I urge you to use your mother's name, as an honor to your feeling for her.

Or, if you wish, you might write the invitations to your wedding making the invitation informal. In this invitation you could say:

Dear Mary:

John and I are to be married [illegible]

A Return of Hospitality

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Two weeks ago my husband and I were invited to a [illegible] dinner along with several other guests. How shall we repay our hostess and how soon? The hostess is not an intimate friend but our children are very dear friends. K. H.

You should, as soon as convenient, return the compliment of such gracious hospitality. A dinner invitation is an especially charming social gesture, and if we are careful about our social obligations, we plan to give a return of hospitality party fairly soon after we have been invited.

Household Hints

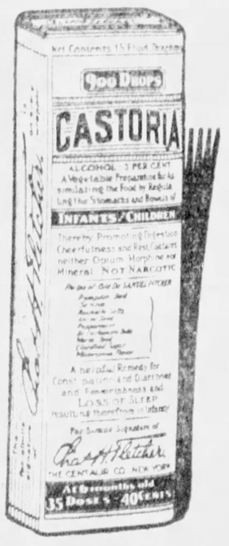
For TEETHING troubles



FUSSY, fretful . . . . of course babies are uncomfortable at teething time! And mothers are worried because of the little upsets which come so suddenly then. But there's one sure way to comfort a restless, teething child. Castoria — made especially for babies and children! It's perfectly harmless, as the formula on the wrapper tells you. It's mild in taste and action. Yet it quickly little upsets with a never-failing effectiveness.

That's the beauty of this special children's remedy! It may be given to tiny infants—as often as there is need. In cases of colic and similar disturbances, it is invaluable. But it has every-day uses all mothers should understand. A coated tongue calls for a few drops to ward off constipation; so does any suggestion of bad breath. Whenever older children don't eat well, don't rest well, or have any little upset, a more liberal dose of this pure vegetable preparation is usually all that's needed. Genuine Castoria has Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper. Doctors prescribe it.

LIST OF GOING BASEBALL VETS GROWS

THE LAST FEW days have seen several additions made to the already long list of familiar figures that will be missing from the major baseball leagues this year. Curt Walker, Johnny Gooch, Johnny Cooney, Hank DeBerry, Eddie Moore, Bud Clancy, Irish Meusel and others have fallen into line in the big parade of departing veterans that previously took through the exits Jack Quinn, George Sisler, Max Carey, Chic Fraser, Benny Meyer, Fred Hunter, Jack McCallister, Bob Shawkey, Heinie Wagner, Earl Smith, Andy High, Art Shires, Benny Bengough, Denny Southern, Walter Roettger, Eddie Farrell, Herman Bell, Alex Metzler, Bubbles Hargrave and many more.

Johnny Cooney

A new chance bobbed up for another prominent veteran just as he was on his way through the gates. Joe Sewell, released by Cleveland, did not get the National League offer he had hoped for, but the Yankees gave him a job and saved him from the minors for the time being, at least. But in spite of the retention of Sewell and a few others who had been reported as done, the number of old-timers leaving the big show is probably larger than in any other off-season in history.

THE RELEASE OF Southpaw Johnny Cooney by the Braves to Toledo in the American Association takes out of the majors the last member of an unusual baseball family. The Cooneys were the first family to have two sons follow the father in making good in the fast set. Ed Walsh has been the only other former big leaguers since to send up two sons and one of those sons, Bob, has yet to make good. He was sent back to the minors for seasoning by the Yankees only last week.

The original Jim Cooney was an infielder for Cap Anson's Chicago White Stockings in 1890, 1891 and 1892. During the last decade two of his sons held down berths in the majors. Jim played shortstop for several years for the Cardinals, Cubs and Phillies, drifting to the minors a couple of seasons back. All of Johnny's big league service was seen with the Braves, whom he joined first in 1920. He was sent temporarily to Jersey City and Newark last year, but this time he probably is leaving the main tent for good.

IN ADDITION TO pitching in his turn before he suffered an injury to the elbow of his left arm, Johnny was often used by the Braves as a first baseman and outfielder on account of his batting ability.

He was a born stylist who did everything smoothly, with no waste motion, but he never was able to fulfill his promise of greatness. He was handicapped in the first place because he was too light and lacked stamina, and the injury to his pitching arm completed his major league ruin.

COONEY'S CASE SHOWS how frequent have been the changes in the Boston National League club. For though not yet 30, Johnny was the oldest member of the Braves in point of continuous service. That distinction now falls to Outfielder Lance Richbourg, the only player with the Tribe who was on the roster during the spring training trip of 1927. From 1920 to 1931 Cooney served under three club presidents in Boston, George Grant, Christy Mathewson and Emil Fuchs, and seven managers, George Stallings, Fred Mitchell, Dave Bancroft, Jack Slattery, Rogers Hornsby, Fuchs and Bill McKechnie.

Dundee Rodgers

THE DEAL THAT gives a major league chance to Frank (Dundee) Rodgers brilliant young Stowe-Rocks outfielder, who has been obtained from Baltimore by the Cincinnati Reds in exchange for Johnny Gooch, former Pirate catcher, is gratifying not only to the friends of the player but to fans in general throughout the district.

Those who have been watching the work of the youngster during his three years in organized ball, following his impressive playing for McKees Rocks High School, are confident that he has the stuff to make good in the majors and needs only this opportunity to show what he can do.

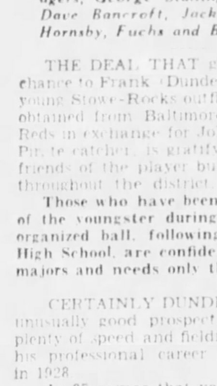
CERTAINLY DUNDEE'S MINOR league record stamps him as an unusually good prospect, one combining a real batting punch with plenty of speed and fielding ability. He has come fast since he began his professional career with Frederick in the Blue Ridge League in 1928.

In 87 games that year, Rodgers hit .298, and in 1929 he made a similar mark in 103 games for the Hagerstown pennant winners in the same loop. In 99 games for New Haven during the first part of last year in the Eastern League he hit .319, his 123 hits including 23 home runs, 20 doubles and three triples, and after New Haven disbanded he went to Peoria in the Three-I League and slugged at a .336 clip in 38 games during the remainder of the season. Baltimore, which owned him, let him go only because it had seven outfielders and was in sore need of a catcher, and because Cincinnati would not consider any other player in exchange for Gooch.

BILL TILDEN declares that Henri Cochet is the greatest tennis player of all time and would have beaten him (Tilden) the best day he ever lived. "Tennis is improving all the time,' Tilden told Bill Corum. "The champion of 10 years ago might have been the best of his time, but the game itself has improved since then, so that the champion of 1931 would probably have a step on the titleholder of the preceding decade. Cochet is the greatest ever because of the tremendous variety of his game, his steadiness, his mastery of every move and stroke, and his speed when he needs it. In addition to all this, he has developed a backswing to disguise direction that is something to go up against."

TO SUPPORT THE claim that he still has plenty of top-notch tennis left in him, Tilden points out that the difference in age between Babe Ruth or Jack Dempsey and himself is not great. Ruth will be 37 February 7, Tilden will be 38 February 10, Dempsey will be 36 June 24.

Yet Ruth is showing no sign of let'ing down and there are rumors of a comeback by Dempsey, Tilden points out. Bill is still guarding carefully the name of the mysterious fourth member of the Tilden-Hunter-Kozeluh tennis tour, which is to start in New York February 18. All he will admit is that the fourth man won't be Vincent Richards.



Capt. Malcolm Campbell

PREPARING FOR THE big speed trial at Daytona Beach, Fla., next month, Capt. Malcolm Campbell is making no claims for his 1,450-horsepower automobile, in which he hopes to cover a measured mile in 15 seconds or less. "I really don't know what my machine will do," he said. "I've had no opportunity to test it. The difference between Sir Henry Segrave's record of 231 miles an hour and the 240 average I hope to make is only two-fifths of a second. That's not much, you know. No, I wouldn't want to say what my Bluebird will do. My tires are tested for 300 miles an hour." Asked if the danger involved ever made him hesitate Capt. Campbell replied: "I've seen 'it' in front of me so many times I'm a fatalist. You never go before your time. If my time is up I'm ready to go. There's no use grousing."

THE RELEASE OF Southpaw Johnny Cooney by the Braves to Toledo in the American Association takes out of the majors the last member of an unusual baseball family. The Cooneys were the first family to have two sons follow the father in making good in the fast set. Ed Walsh has been the only other former big leaguers since to send up two sons, and one of those sons, Bob, has yet to make good. He was sent back to the minors for seasoning by the Yankees only last week.

DIRECTOR RIIS RECOMMENDS AL FOR JOB

By VERN SWARTSFAGER

Gather about the fireside, friends and listen to a good piece of news. News that will bring joy to the hearts of all golfers, public and private linksmen alike.

Al McBride

Al McBride is to be golf professional at the South County Park links. He will assume his duties at that place, moving with his wife and babies, on or about March 1 into a dandy, snug home provided for him there.

With the full favor of the county commissioners, Joseph G. Armstrong, E. V. Babcock and Charles C. McGovern, it is a foregone conclusion that the hearty recommendation of Director of County Parks Paul B. Riis will be approved immediately upon its presentation.

STRONG ORGANIZATION

Director Riis and the county commissioners are to be congratulated upon their selection of McBride for this most important of duties at the new golf course. The addition of the golf instructor, who has made for himself a national reputation during his tenure at the Schenley Park municipal links, rounds out a fine picture, a strong, intelligent organization.

With Riis intensely interested in the completion of a dream, John Jay Burke, city office manager for the County Parks, a golf executive of fine reputation in public links affairs, locally and nationally, and McBride, a steady, persevering, result-getting worker, Allegheny County taxpayers may point a proud finger to as fine a golf organization as one can find in public links golf in this country.

LANG CONSENTS

It had been said that McBride would not accept an offer from the county because city officials had given him a flattering advance in salary and offered him better working conditions.

But yesterday, an ambassador of the County Commissioners, John J. Burke, interviewed City Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang, and that broad-minded, far-seeing official granted McBride's release for March 1 or thereabouts. There is no doubt of Director Lang's regret in losing Al at Schenley Park, but he realizes it would be an unwise move to stand in the road as McBride seeks to take a step nearer the top on the ladder to success. In giving his consent to the change, Lang wished McBride success in his new work.

McBride has been associated with golf for 27 years. He started playing at the Pittsburgh Golf Club links, which was given over to the city in 1909, and his first job was in the shop of his brother Bill, then pro at the municipal links. When his brother became too ill to work, Al took over the job and has been a big success since. Bill died only recently.

Aside from being an excellent instructor and fine player, Al McBride has earned an enviable reputation for himself throughout the country for the manner in which he has attended the playing of large crowds at the overcrowded Schenley Park links. His system has eliminated confusion and brought general satisfaction.

ANNUAL FEE $10

It is also expected that Director Riis will recommend that permit cards, not tags, be issued at the County Park links this year. He favors a $10 annual fee, the permit to cover playing privileges at both North and South parks, with a $5 fee for locker privileges to matured persons. A junior permit, for youths 18 and under, also is likely to be effected, and this will cost, it is recommended, $5, without opportunity of locker room privilege, and with limited playing time.

On the permit cards will appear every permit-holder's picture and signature, so they will not be transferable. All holders of permits must be taxpayers and show

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: "BOBBIE," THE PRODIGAL DOG—Bobbie, a Scotch collie, owned by G. F. Brazier, of Silverton, Ore., was lost by his master in Wolcott, Ind., in August, 1923. Brazier advertised extensively for the dog and had given up hope of his return when, on February 15, 1924, Bobbie appeared at his old home, the Reo Cafe, in Silverton, footsore and weary from his 3,000-mile roundabout tramp from Indiana. Since the death of this famous dog, a few years ago, plans have been made for the erection of a memorial in his honor. H. HURWITT LOST A TOURNAMENT WITH BETTER AVERAGE THAN HIS OPPONENT—In the 1930 amateur handicap 18.2 balkline billiard tournament of Portland, Hurwitt and W. Rosenfeld, who were playing to 110 points, tied at 108 in the thirty-sixth inning. In the first half of the thirty-seventh inning, Rosenfeld made the necessary two counters to win, giving him an average of 2.99 per inning, while Hurwitt had an average of exactly 3.00. The record of this game is in the Rialto Billiard Parlors of Portland, Ore. THE MOTTO OF THE PRINCE OF WALES—The Prince of Wales' German motto, "Ich dien," was first adopted by the Black Prince, who found it inscribed under the plume of the blind King John, of Bohemia, killed by the English in the battle of Crecy.

Section III.
Knoxville at Langley.
Ferry at Latimer.
Carrick at South Hills.

After today the high school basketball quintets of the City League and the W. P. I. A. L. can sit back and regard with mingled and varied feelings the doings of the first half championship races. The City League reaches the halfway mark today with three games listed in each section, and what W. P. I. A. L. sections that did not pass the half-way post last week will complete their initial rounds with contests tonight.

In a feature City League attraction that bodes dire results for one of the contestants if an upset occurs, Westinghouse risks its undefeated record against formidable Fifth Avenue. Fifth was beaten by South in a great second place battle last Friday, but the Uptowners, despite inexperience and lack of size, only faltered in the final period after leading the South entry three-fourths of the way.

LEADERS FAVORED

Westinghouse has been charging along like a pack of thoroughbreds to date, and holds the distinction of having defeated both the defending W. P. I. A. L. champions and also the state kings, New Kensington and Sharon. The Brushtonites have won five consecutive games in Section I.

The fight for second place continues with Schenley and South clashing at South in a secondary feature. Schenley can effect a tie with the Washabaugh crew for the runner-up post by winning today. Today's game will mark the final appearance of the strong South quintet, which will be riddled with mid-term graduations after today.

Peabody and Allderdice, neither going anywhere in particular in the title chase, clash in the third game on the card.

In Section II, where Allegheny dominates the situation, the North Siders face their final foe of the first half in Langley. South Hills meets Carrick at Carrick, and Perry and Oliver renew their rivalry at Perry.

CURTAILED PROGRAM

The W. P. I. A. L. with a somewhat curtailed program, nevertheless offers some classic contests, well worth looking over. At New Brighton, in Section IV, Beaver Falls and New Brighton clash for the leadership of the division. Monessen and Charleroi clash at Charleroi in a like contest in Section V. In Section VIII Braddock can scramble the situation mightily by defeating the unbeaten Scott High passers, of North Braddock. Scott, one of the favorites, along with Ambridge, New Castle, Homestead and Greensburg, to reach the finals in the coming elimination tournament, may find the going against the Kneling-led Braddock team a sight more rugged than it expected.

MIAMI, (AP.)—The second scheduled big fight of the current winter season swelled into official being as Pa Stribling obtained the only remaining open date for a February 24 show between Mickey Walker, middleweight champion, and Johnny Risko, Cleveland baker boy. The affair will precede his duel with Frank Klaus. Show between Jimmy Maloney, Boston, and Prime Carrera.

OAKLAND, Cal. — (AP.) — Russell (Buzz) Arlett, heavy hitting outfielder of the Oakland Baseball Club, has been sold to the Philadelphia Nationals, terms of the cash deal were not announced.

BOSTON, Jan. 27. — (AP.) — Ernie Schaaf, fighting his second major bout in four days, gave Dick Daniels, Minneapolis heavyweight, a terrific lacing, beating here last night. The Bostonian worked a stinging left to the head and both hands to the body and carried seven of the rounds by wide margins.

M'MILLEN BEATEN

NEW YORK, Jan. 27. — (AP.) — Joe London, recognized in some circles as A.A.U. weight wrestling champion, successfully defended his title against Jim McMillen, former University of Illinois football star, in Madison Square Garden last night.

FIERRO, DATTO BOX TONIGHT

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

A slick (not sick) looking young man is this Harry Fierro, 22-year-old Chicagoan, who clashes with Johnny Datto, hard-hitting Filipino featherweight, in the 10-round main bout in Motor Square Garden tonight. Aside from a slightly squared nose, he has come through his many battles against the topnotchers entirely unmarked. He is a bright and cheerful fellow too, and looks on the Datto engagement as just another fight. He is the main support of a lot of Fierros back home and he craves action against the best of them in the ring.

Fierro, who made the rounds of the newspaper offices yesterday, is a soft-spoken chap, but he has for his manager Frank Dane, a veteran in the fight game, who formerly was a promoter in Washington and Boston, one of his fondest memories being a show he put on in the latter city one night in which Gene Tunney and Chuck Wiggins lullabied the patrons to sleep and Dane can talk you black and blue in the face on the subject of the greatness of Fierro, who has met most of the leaders in his class.

MANAGER BOOSTS HIM

"We saw Battling Battalino, the featherweight champion, box Eddie Shea in Chicago the other night," Dane said. "Say, if that fellow is the champion, Fierro is 10 champions. Those bimbos are a dime a dozen or less for him."

Both Fierro and Datto have been in town since Sunday morning. This is a spot for Fierro, and he wants to return for future engagements. Datto has boxed here several times, making his best

Max Zengschmidt, timer at boxing shows, tells of a good one that happened at last Thursday night's battles in McKeesport. It is customary for the gallery fans there to give the officials the well-known "bird" when they are introduced, and on this occasion Max spied a friend of many years' standing in a front row seat at the ringside tooting in the booing with great gusto. He appeared to be going at his best when Zengschmidt was announced as the timer.

After the first bout was over Max went over to his friend and asked him what the idea was of booing him when he was introduced.

"Say, listen," was the comeback, "I paid two bucks for this seat, and I don't like the fights, and I came to have a good time—and I'm having it!"

Harry Fine, Hill district boxer, who appears at the Garden tonight, went into the ring in the Moose Temple last Friday night sporting a beautiful shiner, the eye closing and becoming more discolored as the bout progressed. Where did he get the badge? Boxing with an amateur in the Pittsburgh Lyceum gym. As they started off, he extended his glove fist for the customary handshake and was surprised, to say the least, when the amateur crossed a beautiful right to the optic, putting it in mourning. At least, that's his story.

MORGAN ELEVEN IN FINALE

By TOM BIRKS

For the fifth time in six years Western Pennsylvania has placed a team in the final round of the national amateur soccer cup. Morgan's victory over the Sons of St. George in Cleveland last Sunday gives it that right. The financial returns of the game brings out the fact that the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph was correct in its stand that Morgan should have asked for a postponement.

A correct attendance put the local club in the hole, Morgan's receiving only $86 for his end.

Just what the local commissioner was doing to allow the Pittsburgh team to walk into this mess is beyond the writer, but it is evident Bill Annis and his mates in Ohio care little on what becomes of Western Pennsylvania teams in the amateur tourney.

Morgan's and the Morgan team went by bus and like crammed sardines certainly did not help the playing. Morgan scored three goals stopping all the Cleveland effort to score.

This evening the West Penn Football Association will meet at the usual headquarters and every league delegate is expected to be on hand.

Secretary Attilio Neccini of the Mon-Youngh League is requested to call this writer at Grant 8500 tonight at 6 o'clock.

SPENCER FINE SPEED PITCHER

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

While it is natural for the spectacular Charley Wood to get the big headlines in the newspapers there are many learned baseball men who see in another Pirate recruit the makings of a star. Glenn Spencer, of fast-ball fame, the apple of the eye of those who dote on speed pitching.

Glenn Spencer

Spencer like Wood, fails to measure up in deed. Glenn has the charm and manner of a debutante in his street raiment there being little about his physique to denote a ball player.

Hidden somewhere in his frame, the Richmond, Ind., hurler packs a wallop that baffles the best hitters in the league. On one occasion last season Glenn held the Cardinals to two hits, only to lose the ball game. Jim Wilson, darling of the bases caused Glenn to make a wild pitch that cost one run, and in the ninth he saw Taylor Douthit pack a speedy offering in the lefthand bleachers to end the duel.

Aside from Lloyd Waner, Spencer might be said to be the smallest athlete in the Pittsburgh family. It is true he is only inch or two below six feet, but he weighs only 155 and there are times in the heat of the summer when he apparently drops below his mark.

Spencer's pitching mainly relies on control, but there is no harder worker on the club when he is on the mound.

Andrucci is Beaten By Mickey Duris

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Jan. 27. — (AP.) — Mickey Duris, 138½, Johnstown, won a 10-round decision over Andy Andrucci, 137, Pittsburgh, here last night. Pres. Johnson, 129, Akron, O., was given the verdict over Joey Kalk, 129, Pittsburgh, after six rounds of fighting.

'Big Four' Track Meet Discontinued

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Jan. 27. — (AP.) — H. A. Stansbury, director of athletics at West Virginia University, said today that there will be no "Big Four" track and field meet next spring. West Virginia, the University of Pittsburgh, Washington and Jefferson College and Carnegie Tech comprise the "Big Four."

Stansbury also said the West Virginia intercollegiates, inaugurated here last season, will not be continued. In view of the fact that these events are not to be held this spring, the Mountaineers will meet Army here and Navy at Annapolis instead.

Packers' Sons Always Follow Their Fathers

—By B. C. FORBES—

Mr. Forbes

THE WITHDRAWAL from Armour & Company of the only member of the Armour family, Philip D., who had remained active in the business, until last week, invites attention to this extraordinary fact. Although the slaughtering and packing of cattle, pigs and sheep possesses little glamour for typical young Americans, there is no line of business that has attracted a larger percentage of the sons of the men engaged in it. The record in this respect is phenomenal.

ARMOUR'S was founded by Philip D. Armour, an individual of towering ability amounting to genius, who had accumulated practically no schooling. Both his sons, Philip D. Jr. and J. Ogden Armour, became packers. The former died many years ago leaving J. O. to run the business which he did until shortly before he died, in 1927. Philip D. the third followed the family calling, starting as vice president, but quit only last week when the directors picked him up in filling the presidency following the tragic death of F. Edson White.

GUSTAVUS SWIFT, founder of the hero of packing enterprises of them all left six sons and no fewer than five of them became packers. Nor did they take their responsibilities lightly. Louis F. Swift, the oldest brother who succeeded his father as president, has long been known as one of the hardest-working men in America. The successful piloting of Swift & Co. through all kinds of storms, weather has been largely due to the tremendous industriousness of the five brothers, combined with their thorough knowledge of every phase of the packing industry.

The third generation of Swifts is now coming along and is represented in the management.

ANNOUNCEMENT CAME a few weeks ago that Edward F. Wilson had been elected a vice president of Wilson & Co. He is the only son of Thomas E. Wilson, head of the enterprise. Louis F. Swift tells me that, from the time he could toddle, he knew that he wanted to become a packer. Similarly, Edward Wilson never had the slightest inclination to follow any other line of work. Visiting Europe as a youth, he was more interested in inspecting famous herds of cattle and other animals than in visiting ancient buildings. Mr. Wilson's only daughter, Helen, married a member of the organization, and her husband H. J. Williams, also was recently elected a vice president.

BEFORE ITS absorption, Morris & Company also attracted the second generation. Edward Morris became a vice president when 21, on the death of his father, and was made president when 23. The stockyards fascinated him from his earliest boyhood. Summoned to give evidence at an investigation, the youthful president of Morris & Company astounded the probers and everybody by his minute knowledge of the packing business and all its far-spread ramifications.

THE CUDAHY family also has shown like traits.

IN OTHER lines of business only a few sons came shinningly to the front last year in the family business.

A. Clarke Bedford, son of the late A. C. Bedford, former head of Standard Oil of New Jersey, was elected president of the Colonial Beacon Oil Company, a Standard Oil subsidiary. J. Dugald White succeeded his father, J. G. White, as president of that well known engineering and construction company. George W. Johnson was elevated to the presidency of Endicott-Johnson, famous shoe manufacturing enterprise, in succession to his father, who became chairman. Arthur W. Shuttleworth followed in his father's footsteps as president of the important Mohawk carpet mills. Edwin R. Brigham succeeded his father, the late H. H. Brigham, as president of the North American Car Company.

John D. Rockefeller, 3d, last year entered his father's office to begin qualifying as his successor. And, as told here recently, three sons of Kuhn Loeb & Co. partners, John M. Schiff, Felix M. Warburg, Gilbert W. Kahn, were admitted to partnership in that old established international banking house.

IN OLDER countries it is far more common than here for sons to succeed fathers. In this young land there are more opportunities, and sons arrogate to themselves a larger measure of independence in choosing their careers.

Reserve Members' Loans Show Drop

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27. The Federal Reserve Board's weekly condition statement as of January 21 shows decreases for the week of $63,000,000 in loans and investments, $173,000,000 in net demand deposits, $14,000,000 in government deposits, and $10,000,000 in borrowings from Federal Reserve banks. Time deposits are up $21,000,000. Loans on securities total $7,425,000, a decrease of $95,000,000, and all other loans $2,414,000, an increase of $14,600,000.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

IMPROVED BOND MARKET HELD TRADE AID

Seen as Setting in Motion Curative Economic Forces; $400,000,000 Absorbed

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.

The improving status of the bond market since the turn of the year has an important bearing on business recovery.

Though an upturn in stock prices would doubtless help business, trade will depend far more on the bond market during 1931 for attracting capital from investors.

Mr. Rukeyser.

The weakness in bonds in the closing quarter of 1930, especially during December, was contrary to economic fundamentals and was caused by recessionary backwash from stocks. With confidence restored, there has been in recent weeks a return flow of bank funds into the bond market.

On the basis of past performance, the end of a satisfactory bond market is not yet in sight. Usually a good bond market, as measured by the capacity of investors to absorb new offerings, lasts at least a full year after the turn upward following a major depression.

BROAD MARKET

A broad bond market is in sight, and is likely to be the means of channelizing investment funds which are seeking to flow into productive uses. A good bond market would set in motion curative economic forces. The building of more modern and efficient plants and of better and more up-to-date capital equipments could be financed through the bond market. No more mere expansion is needed. What the country requires is more efficient industrial equipment which will cut production costs and be consonant with the current mandate for low prices.

Since the turn of the year, the market has absorbed more than $400,000,000 in new bond offerings.

The impelling motive behind such new bond buying has been the recognition that the spread between prevailing interest rates and bond yields was abnormally large, and therefore presumably temporary.

Prices on high grade bonds normally move in accordance with short term interest rates on prime commercial paper, but during the hysterical December liquidation they got far out of line.

COMPARISON MADE

To make the comparison specific, George W. Edwards, economist of Stone & Webster and Blodgett, Inc., prepared the subjoined table giving a comparison of the rate on four to six months' commercial paper, the yield on high grade bonds, and the spread in December, 1930, and in previous years:

STOCK EXCHANGE TOPICS

Case Treshing Machine Found to Be Poor Feeding for Bears Lately.

The bear element has found Case Threshing Machine a rather poor feeding ground since the turn of the year. One of the larger operators who had maintained an extended short position in that stock is understood to have retired from his position a while back leaving smaller traders who had followed his play to take care of themselves. The task has not been an easy one and yesterday the stock changed hands rather actively at new high levels for the movement and the year. The company has outstanding slightly less than 195,000 shares of common stock and in the course of the day trading in the issue totaled about one-quarter of the foregoing figure. Considering the fact that the stock is quite closely held, its action suggested that shorts were being permitted to retire rather gracefully, sufficient stock being made available to forestall anything in the way of fireworks.

Selling came into Stewart-Warner midway through yesterday afternoon following the announcement that directors had voted to omit the dividend due at this time. The action of directors was adequately explained by the poor showing of operating results reported for the December quarter. The company had a net loss of $721,171 after charges in that period, as against net profit of $454,587 in the September quarter and $412,657 in the final quarter of 1929. Net profit for the full year 1930 stood at $1,262,278, contrasted with $6,838,928 in 1929. The company had paid two dividends of 50 cents each in July and October of last year, following a payment of 25 cents ordered in April. Prior to that time dividend payments had been made on a $3.50 annual basis.

Report was current in New York speculative circles to the effect that the United Corporation would shortly offer its stockholders the right to subscribe for additional stock. Wall street, it seemed, had the terms of the purported offering at its finger tips with gossip setting forth that stockholders would receive the right to subscribe at $15 a share for new stock in the ratio of one new share for each five shares held on the date of record to be fixed in connection with the deal. Inquiry at the offices of the company, however brought a quick denial of contemplation of any such plan. Officials remarked that no such deal had been even up for consideration. Trading in United Corporation continued to assume substantial proportions around the best levels of the recovery.

Up to a few days ago, the side lines were crowded with traders. Many were bullish but afraid to buy, and many were bearish but afraid to sell. Some were waiting for business to turn before they bought stocks, and some were waiting until stocks touched "bottom" before they indulged. While the side lines still are crowded, the recent strength of the market on bad news has converted many to the bull side. If the market reverses, they will scamper back to the side lines.

Judging from the action of the market recently, the optimists obtained the upper hand, at least temporarily. A persistent contest has been in progress, with an organized bear party attempting to keep down the market. Without necessitous liquidation, such as came into stocks between last September and the middle of December, the bear party found that offerings were reduced whenever stocks reacted. In addition scale support from the bulls was encountered, and eventually the short covering became heavy, forcing many stocks ahead toward the end of the week.

Apparently bank buying has been coming into high-grade bonds recently because the yield is better than can be obtained by putting out time money. The action of some of the best issues has been responsible for that opinion spreading in the financial district. Particular attention has been attracted to Atchison general mortgage 4s, which last week sold at the highest record since 1912. A sharp recovery for that class of bonds took place from the low levels reached during the persistent selling in December.

STOCK MARKET AGAIN LOSES COURAGE

List Eases at Opening, Rallies at Noon, Then Heads to Lower Levels

NEW YORK, Jan. 27 (AP).—The share market again lost its courage today in this foggy and uncertain period of quarterly earnings statements and dividend declarations.

The stock list eased off right after the opening, fallen under leadership of the industrials on shares around noon, but again issued after the close at noon on announcement of the change out in the Studebaker dividend. The U. S. Steel earnings statement to be issued after the close still attended a note of uncertainty, but U. S. Steel common was well supported. Listed bonds were turned sluggish with the announcement of more than $50,000,000 in new offerings.

Reduction in the Studebaker annual dividend rate from $1.50 to $1.00 after the cut from $3 to $1.50 earlier in the year came in the heels of the Stewart Warner dividend omission yesterday and also revived speculation for the rest in the motor and accessory shares. Automobile production as estimated for the week ended Jan. 17 showed only about the normal seasonal gain. The Motor and Equipment Association reported fair gains in parts and accessory manufacturing. It was acknowledged in motor circles however that a clear picture of earnings prospects will not be available until spring.

Advance Wall Street estimates of what U. S. Steel's statement will show for the last quarter generally place net at around 50 cents a share of which about 10 cents is expected to be credit from the tax refund, so that actual operating earnings of only about 40 cents are looked for. It has been rumored in brokerage circles that a favorable analysis of the outlook in the steel industry may be issued by the management. An improvement in steel was a slight softening of scrap prices at Chicago.

Railway earnings statements appearing for December show a few exceptions to the general trend of net income. The aggregate for the first 20 to report however shows a drop of 32.4 per cent from 1929 and 39.2 from 1928.

Further strengthening of the underlying situation in the security markets appeared in the week's condition statement of weekly reporting member banks, which showed a drop of $37,000,000 in loans on securities against a decline in brokers' loans of only $10,000,000.

Albert H. Wiggin appearing before the Glass committee of the Senate yesterday agreed with Dr. H. Parker Willis that aggregate loans against securities are in the neighborhood of $6,000,000,000 and that further inquiries on that in prospect. Such application has been particularly rapid in the past three weeks and has been accomplished without heavy open market selling or impairment of security prices.

Western Pacific Project Approved

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—The Interstate Commerce Commission has approved a project of the Western Pacific Railroad to construct 39 miles of new line from the South San Francisco industrial districts through Redwood City to Niles and thereby afford an all-rail entrance into San Francisco in lieu of its present ferry service up to the city from across the bay.

Manhattan Shirt Co. To Call Preferred

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—Manhattan Shirt Company directors have decided to call for retirement at $120 a share the 2,993 shares of preferred stock outstanding on November 30, 1930. No date has been set for retirement of the stock.

Livestock Values Show Decrease

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—The Department of Agriculture estimates total value on January 1, 1931, of livestock on farms at $4,388,477,000, against $5,807,064,000 on January 1, 1930, and $6,006,000,000 on January 1, 1929.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—The Curb market was dull and irregular during most of today's trading. There was considerable demand on small lots to keep prices steady and in some instances to advance them, but there was no real buying support developed.

Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds dealt in (000 omitted in sales column of stocks, last 000 omitted in sales column of bonds):

TIGER HEART -:- By Robert Terry Shannon

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Connie Calvert shares her home and fortune with her half-sister, Kitty, whom she found destitute in New York's underworld. Kitty falls in love with Jim Tracy, Connie's former fiance. Believing Jim to be a fortune hunter, Connie, to save Kitty, enlists the aid of Duke Garson, Kitty's friend and underworld intelligence man. He warns Connie that her butler is a crook and that her mother should guard her pearls. Later, Duke is about to declare his love for Connie when Jim appears. He claims he was held up and is afraid to go home. Connie invites him to stay. Duke doubts Jim's story. That night, Mrs. Calvert's pearls are stolen. Duke questions the maid about them. The maid doubts Kitty's honesty. Mrs. Calvert becomes ill after the excitement. Duke accuses Jim of lying about being held up. Jim says he lied because he did not trust Duke and wanted to get back to the Calvert home. Connie tells her mother that she is not sure whether she loves Duke.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XLIV

Mrs. Calvert's eyes were steady, but clouded with pain and sympathy.

"I know better than to try to interfere, or contradict, what your heart tells you," she said to Connie.

"I don't intend to stop at anything to gain a point," Connie said, her tone tempting. "But I can't be responsible for my feelings just now."

"I know dear. I went through the same thing when I fell in love with your father. I suppose the thing is written in the stars, and there's no way to alter it."

"Why don't you like Duke Garson, mother?" Connie asked her.

Doubts Duke

"I do like him, as a person. When it comes to considering him as a—husband I'm not so sure. Perhaps, though, he may be the one man on earth for you—I don't know. All I do know is that I've got a sensation of doubt surrounding him, but I do know this, if he is the right man for you there need be no haste. Time proves all things. Wait, and study your own heart."

Her mother said this so seriously that a touch of humor came to Connie, perversely.

"Oh, mother, you sounded just like an Advice to the Love-lorn column," she laughed.

"And you've been sounding like one of the perplexed young ladies who get into difficulties," her mother smiled. "Their problems are quite as real as yours, I imagine. It is so difficult to make you see the necessity of truths."

A spark of rebellion for the first time shone dimly in Connie's eyes.

"I'll have my whole lifetime—after something happens to me to be proven." I know it's common sense to be careful, but I really do want to be reckless. I really do, mother. All of my life added.

"Sympathy always," her mother agreed.

"It's strange I should feel sympathy towards anyone as strong as Duke Garson is," Connie speculated. "He never seems to be in any doubt. I have a feeling about him that nothing in his life has ever hurt him. He's like granite. Yet I constantly find myself wanting to be good to him, to take care of him."

"Nothing can have said," Mrs. Calvert told her, "has convinced me that the necessity of being careful has increased. I know, too, that there is such a thing as over-caution. All mothers, I imagine, fear for their daughters. Perhaps that is why I was waiting for you to marry Jim Tracy, for safety's sake, before I would give my heart to a man of whom I knew all I did and more if possible. How do you suppose that Duke Garson feels toward you, might I not be in error, and it's only one more pretty girl he's after?"

The eyes of her mother were suddenly upon her, aside from the natural affection and admiration she seemed to Connie to possess an appealing loveliness. The intensity of Connie's feelings brought to her creamy complexion a soft, suffused glow, the deep amber lights of her eyes were exquisitely mellow, the bronze tints of her hair were smooth silken.

Connie Puzzled

"I'd wondered about that, too," Connie admitted. "I know so little about men actually—still, he isn't like a stranger, either. Sometimes I think he surely loves me and has been on the point of telling me so; then again he appears to think I'm a dumbbell. I don't know any of the things about him that a girl ought to know about the man she dreams of caring for but it doesn't seem to matter."

"Men are curious animals," Mrs. Calvert stated. "It's possible he's idiot enough not to care for you at all; you mustn't throw yourself at his feet."

"I'd die first!" Connie declared, vigorously, but her words were stronger than her real feeling. "Maybe he is in love with someone else. I don't know. I think if I would find it out I'd hate him."

"I'm sure he isn't good enough for you," her mother remarked tritely. "No man is."

Connie's eyes flashed.

"Don't make any mistake about me, mother," she warned her. "I am a human being—not a saint. Just because I'm your daughter doesn't make me exactly holy, you know. I have every impulse inside me that every other woman has, good or bad. I want to find out. I must—whether I'm in love with Duke Garson and whether he loves me. If we are, nothing can stand between us—nothing. That's the reason I want him to stay here a few days longer now before he goes away."

"If you listen to me—" her mother began.

But Connie had risen, and with an involuntary movement she threw her arms around her mother and kissed her with flower-like intensity.

"I don't want to listen to you! I love you and adore you and worship you, but you can't help me in this. I've got to know—for myself."

Feels Sympathetic

Such things her mother responded were indeed a part of love.

But there is so much more to love than mere feeling, her mother assured her. "There must be a kind of delicacy and gentleness, a throb of beauty—or it is worse than nothing."

"And sympathy," Connie added.

"Sympathy always," her mother agreed.

"It's strange I should feel sympathy towards anyone as strong as Duke Garson is," Connie speculated. "He never seems to be in any doubt. I have a feeling about him that nothing in his life has ever hurt him. He's like granite. Yet I constantly find myself wanting to be good to him, to take care of him."

"Nothing can have said," Mrs. Calvert told her, "has convinced me that the necessity of being careful has increased. I know, too, that there is such a thing as over-caution. DAILY TRUE STORY — Find the Judge

"I tell you he has disappeared as completely as a bucketful of water poured into the lake!"

The Honorable Digby Howard stared at Mayor Watkins and shook his head.

"You must be in error, sir," he said, crisply. He prided himself on his dignity and aplomb.

"Then you know something?"

"If by that you refer to any knowledge I may possess as to the present whereabouts of my brother, Judge Decent Howard, I must confess that I know nothing, sir."

"Come, come, now, Mr. Howard, don't be a purist. It's no time to be spouting orotund sentences where the hell do you suppose Judge Howard is hiding?"

The Hon. Digby Howard was really startled by this time, and greatly distressed. Not that he was terrifically fond of his brother, the judge—he liked him in an ordinary brotherly way, but because he saw disgrace in the offing.

Mayor Watkins voiced his very thoughts at this moment, rather indecently, but to the point.

"What's got into all these damn judges? There's dog appearing right in front of our eyes, almost. It's going to raise the devil and all with this administration."

"This is startling, if you are positive, Mr. Watkins, that my brother has actually disappeared."

Starting on the word "do" you really have no idea where he is?"

"I have not. I believe he ran up to Fern Glen for a week, but that was nearly a month ago. I do not see him often, and I seldom read more than the political and financial news in the papers. I supposed that Dwight was back on the bench administering justice as usual."

Detective Hired

Mayor Watkins was convinced that the Honorable Digby Howard spoke the truth.

"Look here, Mr. Howard, I suggest that you leave a statement for the press and disappear temporarily or they'll hound you to death."

"I know nothing, and can make no statement."

"Just state that you do not know where your brother is but that you feel positive that he is taking a much-needed rest according to his physician's orders, to avoid a nervous breakdown from over-work."

The missing Judge Howard's wealthy and aristocratic brother nodded in agreement, and then he suddenly paled and grasped Mayor Watkins by the arm.

"Is there have there been any irregularities?" he asked fearfully.

"That's the queer part of it, Mr. Howard. Now, when Judge Bain and Judge Henkleigh disappeared there were reasons—bribes misdirected justice, biased decisions, disgraceful messes. Not so with your brother. Judge Howard was straight as a string, couldn't be bribed, couldn't be made to swerve from his ideas of right."

Soon after this the Honorable Digby Howard was closeted with one Michael Madrigan, a private detective of more than ordinary ability.

Michael Madrigan started his work. Regardless of what the Honorable Digby Howard had said about the spotless character of his brother, the judge, Madrigan began working on that. He got plenty of help from Mayor Watkins and was soon convinced that there was no atom of the least wrong-doing on the part of the missing Judge Howard.

Like many another hard-boiled detective, Madrigan believed in the old axiom, "Cherchez la femme." He called on Judge Howard's wife.

"Pretty business, setting detectives on him," she said to Madrigan, "and mark my words, I'll make him walk Spanish when he does come home. What gave he mean and who does he think he is to step out without so much as a word to me?"

Forbidden to Leave

"Ye—ma'am," Madrigan said, edging away. But he had a new idea. He was permitted to go through the judge's papers at his home desk with Mrs. Judge Howard hanging over his shoulder to watch and commenting acidly meanwhile.

Detective Madrigan also searched the judge's papers in his chamber at the courthouse. Then he went home and packed for a journey.

Mrs. Michael Madrigan watched him with dour eyes.

"Now, where you gallivanting away to, Mike?" she demanded.

"Business, Anna," he said, meekly.

"Business in a cat's eye—sure 'tis a great graft you have, chasin' here and there and pretendin' 'tis private detective business so ye can't tell me. Who is she?"

"Now, Anna, you know—"

"I know all men is liars an' crooks. Wasn't my first husband—"

"But this is an important—"

"Shut up. Where you goin'?"

"Down South, that's all I can say now. There will be money for you as usual every week, at the bank—"

"Liar! You're goin' off with some bold hussy. I know men, they're all alike. I won't stand for no more nonsense—"

Weeks passed. Many long weeks. The disappearance of Judge Howard could not be covered up. It was a big newspaper sensation. The judge's wife had only one thing to say, "I don't know where he is." The judge's aristocratic brother doggedly repeated his belief that his brother was recuperating in a sanitarium.

The Honorable Digby Howard fretted more and more. He had received no word or message from Detective Michael Madrigan since the day he hired him.

Jupal is a small village in Matto Grosso, Brazil. Above it on the plateau is Lake Bonito and a sizable coffee plantation. It is a modern establishment with handsome buildings where the owner dwells. The hundreds of employes live, for the most part, down in the village.

One afternoon the owner of the plantation sat comfortably on his wide veranda, reading coffee market reports and drinking an iced concoction of lime, seltzer and a jigger of gin.

"Hello, Judge Howard," the stranger said.

The owner of the coffee plantation stared at the man.

"Who are you?" he asked.

"Private Detective Michael Madrigan."

"You've had a long trip for nothing, Mr. Madrigan. Go back and tell my wife you failed to find me. There's ten thousand dollars for you."

"Your brother, not your wife, hired me, Judge."

"I'm a coffee grower. I'm thirteen days from the nearest railroad. Mr. Madrigan, I offer you a drink."

"An Irishman isn't strong for soft drinks, your honor."

"Cut out the damned 'your honor' stuff, Madrigan. I'll give you whisky, but if you lived here long you'd drink something lighter. Tell me how the devil you found me?"

Remains in Brazil

"After I talked with your wife I began to hunt for clues indicating that you had taken a long trip, and I found several booklets about coffee growing."

"But why did you think I would make a long journey?"

"Begging your pardon, but your wife is a nagger. I married a nagger, too. I figured that you was rich and you wanted to enjoy life and I knew damn well that I'd take a long trip and stay there if I had the money."

"Shake hands, Michael Madrigan."

The men shook hands.

"Now, I'm giving you ten thousand to go home and report your inability to find me."

Michael Madrigan shook his head.

"Listen," he said, "could you give me a half decent job here? Come now, strain a point—Gawd knows I don't want to go back to Anna and—"

"I need a man like you to superintend my shipping," ex-Judge Howard told him.

* * *

They'll tell you, up North, that Judge Howard was so honest that the grafters had to get rid of him and that they even had the private detective, who was hired to solve the mystery, also put out of the way.

But now you know better than that.

Dear Sympathetic Aunt Bella—
When a lady has been corresponding with a gent for some time and it begins to look like he don't want to continue corresponding, should she stop writing? —Anxious.

Ans.—

Yes, indeed. Ladies, I might add, are usually aware of this instinctively and do not need to bother strangers with their personal affairs. Furthermore, "Anxious," this is a very good plan to pursue when your correspondent happens to be another lady. —Aunt Bella.

By "GIRL WITH A PAST."

I was lured to the city by a note from an unscrupulous editor of a confessions magazine who dazzled me with his promises. I was young and pretty, or, you might say, pretty young. In the vine-covered cottage where I lived in a small town we never had confessions magazines and I was nearly 18 before I had read anything but the Yale Review, New Freeman and Outlook. Imagine, then, my sudden rapture and surprise when one morning the mail man handed me a risque postal card which said—

Come and talk it over with the great big handsome Editor Mans. Yours truly, Guess Who?

There was nothing for me to do but accept this challenge—to my imagination—so you can understand how my heart pounded, one week later, when I found myself innocently knocking at a door marked "Private" in the eighty-sixth story Confessions Building. In a few moments, that seemed like hours—

City-Manager Proposal

If Enacted, Pittsburgh's Government Is Changed, the Spoils System Might Be Responsible.

Representative D. Glenn Moore, of Washington County, says that the city-manager form of government be established in five or six of Pennsylvania's cities but Philadelphia. The plan is not likely to be adopted at this session of the legislature.

If the bill were certain of passage, some of our politicians would be making for what they could get out of it. It would be well. But many of the citizens would regard the prospect with equanimity, if not satisfaction.

With the benefits of the city-manager plan, as pointed out by Mayor Russell Wilson, of Cincinnati, in an address last week, fresh in mind, we can see advantages in it that ought to be had under our present form of government.

Under the city-manager plan, municipal employes would be hired for their ability, and ward chairmen would not have a word to say about it.

Pittsburgh might welcome such a plan.

If the change is made, the spoils system will be responsible.

A Pledge Redeemed

Gov. Pinchot Follows Reasonable Course In Abolishing Coal and Iron Police.

Gov. Pinchot has not let the grass grow under his feet in abolishing the coal and iron police.

Within a week of the inauguration he has ordered the cellation of these officers' commissions, effective June 30.

The course he is following is a reasonable one, to which fair-minded person can take exception.

The property of coal and steel companies is not to be left rotected. But the policemen who are to guard the prop- are to be employed by the state and responsible to the e.

Responsible only to the state, they will not be under ptation to show favoritism to the corporations whose prop- they are guarding, when disputes involving no violation he law arise between the corporations and employes. In rt, they will be neutral in strikes, so long as the law is yed.

Pinchot has done well in arranging for a conference of rators, miners and the public to elaborate the plan. It ws an intention to be fair.

More Judges Needed

It Is to be Hoped the Legislature Will Act to Relieve Court Congestion Here.

It is to be hoped the Legislature will act favorably on proposal that Allegheny County be given two more judges the Court of Common Pleas.

Notwithstanding that through death and retirement some our judges well along in years and unable, on that account, work rapidly have been supplanted during the last year younger and more vigorous men, our judiciary is unable keep abreast of the flood of litigation.

Only yesterday it became necessary to call in three judges m outside the county to help the local jurists clear the iminal Court calendar.

During the last four months of 1930 the Common Pleas urt disposed of 1,302 cases, as against 1,211 in the corponding period of 1929, but it still remains a year or more und in its work.

In view of the increase of population and litigation there scant likelihood that the court ever will catch up unless ditional judges are provided.

Sound Politics

Governor of New York Deserves Praise for Standing by Consumers Against Power Interests.

The special message of Franklin D. Roosevelt, Governor New York State, to the New York Legislature on the report the Roosevelt-appointed St. Lawrence River Power Develop- nt Commission deserves unstinted nation-wide praise as a allenge to the power interests of the country in behalf of consumers large and small, especially the latter.

He shows his clear perception of the fact, long apparent, t regulation of public utilities has broken down.

He does not propose that New York State's water power ll be handed over to a private monopoly, with no public eguard but "regulation," which experience has shown to wholly ineffective.

He is right.

He does not ignore the possibility that contracts may be wn which will be fair to the consuming public. This is elligent and shows a desire to avoid the economic waste of unnecessary duplication of facilities for the manufacture d distribution of power.

But contracts are arrived at only as the result of negotians, and Gov. Roosevelt does not intend that New York te shall enter upon these negotiations at a disadvantage—other words, without alternative expedients, upon which can fall back, should the existing monopoly demand too ch and concede too little.

The governor must know that whenever the government private corporations as partners the corporations swindle government, as exemplified in the New York City subway ntracts.

And this knowledge should put him on guard in the posed state negotiations with private companies.

He clearly intimates that failing to reach a fair agreement, State of New York is prepared to develop its natural reources and to distribute electrical energy to the people by ilities of its own creation.

The Republicans of the New York Legislature allow their d in the service of the power trust to outrun their discretion. With rash haste they hurl the cry of "politics!"

Politics, forsooth!

But good politics, sound politics, the politics of actualities, eye single to the public interest and hewing to the line it duty and party pledge.

A Chance to Work

By Nelson Harding

There is work for idle dollars,
Profitable work awaits them,
Opportunity invites them,
Where the door is standing open.

There are bargains for the idle,
Buying funds and hoarded surplus;
There are jobs for idle dollars
If they wisely seek employment.

Marry-Go-Round

Lovers and Others

A henpecked husband is one who has had his kevring taken away from him and put through his nose.

The "Sleeping Beauty" is the only woman who was ever really SURPRISED at a man's "unexpected" kiss.

When a man finally tries telling his wife the truth, and discovers how well she understands him, he realizes how much ingenuity he has been wasting all these years.

There is something sort of sad about a "happy marriage"—in which nothing ever happens, except that a man come home to dinner every evening.

* * *

Last year's love or last year's folly is always a poignant memory which causes a woman a little twinge of regret—but to a man they are as completely forgotten as last year's hay fever.

* * *

No girl ever wanted to be made love to in broad daylight; it takes the illusion of moonlight or shaded candles to hide the flaws in a man's love-making and lend it a rose-colored glamour.

* * *

A woman mixes her love with everything else in her life, from buying a hat to baking a cake. A man tucks his away somewhere in a pigeon-hole, to be taken out only after business hours.

Most husbands are like a gun on the top shelf of the closet. They are never at hand when you need or want them; but, somehow, it's a comfort to feel that you've GOT them, anyway.

* * *

When a man is fishing, hunting or thinking he wants no woman around—but there never seems to be a time when a woman can't do what she's doing better because a man's eye happens to be on her.

* * *

Many a perfectly good husband is like an extension table: he expands only for company and shuts up with a snap when they are gone.

MAN'S ORIGIN AND SURVIVAL

By Archibald Henderson

Some time ago, that trenchant Irish critic, George Bernard Shaw, warned the world that unless the human race set about some real self-improvement, it was doomed to extinction. Throughout the course of life upon earth, many species have made the struggle for existence, survived for a time, and then gone under. Not only individual species, but vast groups of fauna have utterly vanished from the earth. Every dog has his day, is a familiar saying. And, in a sense, the same thing may be said of species. The giant reptiles, the dinosaur, the brontosaur, the plesiosaur, the pterodactyl, the dodo—to mention only familiar examples, had their day and ceased to be.

Obscure causes, beyond the powers of modern science to divine, were responsible for the extinction of species. Was extinction a matter of accident or of design? Was the extinction of these species predictable in advance, or only realizable almost at the moment of extinction? Science does not show such extinction to have been predictable. In that sense, then, extinction of species was an accident—since it is of the nature of the adventitious, the accidental, to be unpredictable.

The evolutionists believe that man descended from some ape-like ancestor; and that the great apes today are man's blood-brothers, a different branch of the same ancestral tree. There was a moment, an epoch, in history when a certain life-form evolved, changing from ape-like ancestor to man. When did this occur, and why? Science cannot answer positively; but can only speculate intelligently, and in "solving" one problem leave many others as yet unsolved.

Perhaps man just happened! Perhaps his birth was an accident, and his survival the fortuitous result of the operations of chance. Man's ancestor was arboreal; and the two results of tree-living existence exercised an incalculably important influence upon his chances of survival. The exercise of hands and arms, the development of the "opposable thumb," have been described as fundamental factors in man's progress.

Furthermore, as Prof. Elliot Smith has pretty well demonstrated, arboreal life resulted in a change in the position of the eyes, from the sides to the front of the face. Binocular vision and the consequent development of the frontal lobes of the brain, resulting from tree-living, exercised an important influence upon man's future development. The instinctive acts of the ape-like, arboreal ancestor of man gradually gave place to thoughtful acts, associated with the frontal lobes of the brain. The British scientist, H. S. Harrison, goes so far as to say that if there had been no trees there would have been no men!

At some unknown epoch in the past, our ancestors deserted the trees, descended to the ground, rose from all fours, and walked only on their hind legs. What were the peculiar conditions of environment reinforced by evolution which brought about this revolutionary change in the habits and characters of our ancestors?

The answer which Harrison gives is this: A fortuitous combination of fortunate circumstances, combined perhaps with some superior physical or mental powers, saved our own line from suppression, but we can no more explain in general terms why some human families die out and titles become extinct, while others persist through centuries.

Man's "clever hands and large brain" enabled him to survive. This, says Harrison, was an accident more momentous than any other in the history of the human species.

This, however, is the view of a single scientist. And it is probable that the majority of anthropologists and biologists are not arrayed on his side. It is nevertheless true that scientists are still widely divided regarding man's origin and survival: accident or design?

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Her 17-year-old boy, freshman at the State University of Texas, has died. A fine young life, with the promise of noble, useful manhood. Why was he taken when so many worthless ones are left? Out of her bitter bewilderment she cries—"I can't understand it. I keep wondering but no answer ever comes. This agony of going on, without an answer—How long did it take you to stop asking why, Elsie Robinson?"

Have you, too, cried that—beating with frantic hands against the silence? Asking for a reason for your own anguish—or the misery you saw around you? Yes—if you've lived at all—you have. And with the years, perhaps, you've tried to accept it all—tried to be resigned. But as for me, I've never stopped asking why, I never will.

WHY SHOULD I?

WHY SHOULD I BE GIVEN A HEART, GIVEN A BRAIN—NOT USE THEM TO WONDER AND QUESTION AND, PERHAPS REBEL?

Back it comes to me, that Sunday so long ago when I first asked that question. A stuffy country church; a little girl wriggling on the edge of a hard pew, an old gentleman in the pulpit, scolding an Adam and Eve for eating that original apple. I could not understand why he scolded. I, too, would have eaten that apple. What did God expect—putting a tempting tree in the middle of the garden and telling people not to touch? Of course they touched! Hadn't God made them young and full of curiosity, as I was? Hadn't He wanted them to be alive—really alive—not just old stick-in-the muds? Then of course they touched and tasted. What did God expect?

Wonder—curiosity—wanting to Find Out—that seemed the greatest thing in life to me then. It still seems the greatest thing, the proudest thing . . . THE THING IN HUMAN LIFE THAT IS NEAREST TO GOD.

To wonder why . . .

To rebel against evil and pain and the terror of darkness . . .

To ask as if you had a right to know . . .

This is the faculty that sets man above the brute.

AND I AM SURE THAT WE HAVE A RIGHT TO KNOW. AND I AM SURE THAT IF WE KEEP ASKING LONG ENOUGH, SOME DAY THE ANSWER WILL COME.

For indeed all the great answers have come in just that way. Every great and good thing that man has accomplished has come because he dared to ask and keep on asking . . . because he refused to be resigned.

Once men accepted the plague as an act of God. Why was the plague? That was not for man to ask. God had ordained it. So, by their countless thousands, men laid down and died. But some men refused to be resigned. They would not believe the plague was the will of God. They insisted on asking questions. They began to fight filth. They began to kill rats and clean gutters and pass sanitary laws. And the plague passed.

Once upon a time, time and space bound men with shackles. The grave was hardly more impassable than the space that lay between ocean and ocean . . . . nor more silent. Now, hourly, white wings, whirring motors, clip fragments from the space. Byrd's voice came chatting from the Pole. And home is just an hour's flight from where you stand.

One by one the loneliness and terror lift before man's questioning. And, if by questioning—by asking on and on and on—we conquer other nightmares that seemed sure as death—SHALL ANY SAY WE SHALL NOT SOME DAY KNOW THE REASON WHY WE DIE? AND WHAT AWAITS US THERE AROUND THE BEND?

KEEP ASKING?

KEEP ASKING . . . AS YOUR STRONGEST HOPE—YOUR PROUDEST RIGHT!

Two Pictures

Together, They Make You Think.

BEAUTIFUL ALMA RUBENS—BEFORE SHE TOOK DRUGS.

"Look on this picture, and on this."

See what drugs, in a few brief years, can do.

The first photograph is of Alma Rubens, world-famous screen star, before she became an addict.

The second shows her just before her death.

What an appalling difference! You see a beautiful, buoyant creature suddenly withered and broken, still young in years, but tottering on the brink of the grave.

It seems incredible, but as you know, it is true.

There is more to think about in these two pictures than in all the sermons ever preached, or all the books ever written, on the drug habit.

Look well on them. Compare the one with the other and picture in your mind the torment and tragedy this poor girl suffered before death gave her release.

SEPARATELY, they mean nothing.

TOGETHER, they tell all that has been said or can be said about the greatest curse to humanity on earth.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—The aftermath of The Great War has brought about odd contacts here and there in the metropolis. Grudges have vanished and old wounds healed. The blood soaked red of the battlefield has thinned to the lily white of peace. (What is this—an epic?)

Anyway the doorman in front of a new hotel on Central Park South, once traded shots with one of the assistant managers near the railroad station at Bouresches in the famed Belleau Woods. The doorman was a Prussian infantryman and the executive an American Marine.

A grillroom captain in a Broadway restaurant was lieutenant of Alpine troops of Italy and fought a bloody battle with three of his waiters who were Austrian soldiers. A barber in a midtown hotel was stabbed by the barber in an adjoining chair during a hand-to-hand tussle in No Man's Land.

Near Larchmont is a roadside Italian inn run by three brothers. The cook is a German whom they captured and who was isolated in a prison camp for the rest of the war. The secretary to a young railroad executive is a German sniper, wounded by the executive at Chateau Thierry.

In an apartment building on Lexington avenue is a one-armed hallman. He is an Englishman and when wounded lifted himself up long enough to pot a German who was bayoneting a comrade nearby. The grateful comrade bought him a cottage in Long Island and provided the job as hallman.

In the teaming quarters of the East Side are hundreds who took up arms against hundreds among whom they now live in harmony. The prejudice existing toward German workers after the war is gone. Indeed German dialect comedians seem to receive especial applause.

After midnight taxis pull up in front of the Flea Circus on 42d street and freaks able to walk hurry into them. Less fortunate, legless wonders and such, are carried out. All are driven to a boarding house on Tenth avenue, the haven of freaks from over the world.

Incidentally, Tenth avenue has several boarding houses whose decorations are strictly Upper Sandusky. Each has its lumpgilt hall mirror, soiled white poodle and ample-bosomed landlady who queens it at the head of the red checkered table. Also the work-worn slavey whose day never ends.

* * *

I was once a paying guest at a pottery worker's boarding house in East Liverpool, O. Aside from the ceramic clientele were a policeman, a bartender, a lightning calculator, a Turkish bath rubber and two other reporters. All the food was placed on the table and boarders waited in the parlor until a hand-bell rung. After the sound of the gong it was each man for himself. It was my misfortune to sit directly opposite the cop who invariably aided his reach by slipping his pistol from his holster and placing it beside his plate. This cramped my style.

O, yes, in departing from East Liverpool there was the matter of indebtedness to the boarding house people will forget in the hurry of travel amounting to $2.75 a half week's board. A month later a money order was mailed and the reply is still a treasured tid-bit. It read: "Thanks but you certainly et your money's worth."
